

Takes Heavy Gunfire

In Heaviest Attacks From Reds To Date

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces in South Vietnam's embattled northern sector poured artillery, mortar and rocket fire on U.S. and Vietnamese government troops overnight in some of the heaviest enemy shelling of the war.

The U.S. command said 12 American Marines were killed and 180 Marines and seven Army artillerymen were wounded in four attacks. South Vietnamese spokesmen termed their casualties light.

No enemy casualties were reported.

Heavy clouds moved back over much of North Vietnam, limiting air attacks on the North Thursday to 48 missions. All of them were made against targets in the panhandle at the southern end of North Vietnam, sparing the Hanoi-Haiphong area after three days of heavy pounding.

While fighting flared in the northernmost 1st Corps area, the Viet Cong announced they would observe a 48-hour truce from 7 a.m. May 22 to 7 a.m. May 24 (Saigon time) to mark Buddha's birthday. The Saigon government had said earlier it would cease fire for 24 hours on May 23.

There was no immediate indication whether the South Vietnamese and their allies would agree to the longer cease-fire period.

Despite the lull in the air war, the assault on North Vietnam cost the United States another plane today. An Air Force F4C jet bomber caught fire and exploded as it was rolling down the runway for a bombing mission from Ubon Airbase in northeast Thailand. The U.S. Embassy in Bangkok said the plane's two crewmen escaped unhurt but a ground crewman was seriously injured.

The blistering barrages just south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam came after weeks of increasing U.S. concern over Communist moves in the five provinces that make up South Vietnam's 1st Corps area.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported that one of the attacks on Gio Linh, an allied artillery base one mile south of the DMZ, consisted of 1,100 rounds of 105mm howitzer fire. U.S. spokesmen said an estimated 250 rounds of artillery fire were directed at U.S. positions there plus uncounted rounds of mortar fire.

In the past the Communists have used artillery sparingly, and the rain of shells laid down Thursday night aroused speculation that the enemy had strengthened its resources of heavy guns and ammunition.

Industry, Government Are At Odds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The milk industry and the government are at odds whether a federally ordered increase in producer prices of milk should increase consumer costs.

The increases, announced this week by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, range from a half-cent to 1 1/2 cents a quart for fluid or bottling milk. Affected are 70 urban milk marketing areas throughout the country.

Freeman told newsmen the increases would not justify higher retail prices.

But the Milk Industry Foundation, an association of milk processors and distributors, said "no fluid milk distributor that we are aware of is in a position to absorb these increased milk costs."

Producer prices which the Freeman action will provide for fluid or bottling milk compared with the April prices, respectively, include:

St. Louis, $5.47 and $5.07; Springfield, Mo., $5.22 and $4.87; Kansas City, $5.60 and $5.20; Neosho Valley (Pittsburg, Kan., $5.95 and $5.75.

Dutch Are Overjoyed By Prince

UTRECHT, Netherlands (AP) — The jubilant Dutch cheered, drank toasts and declared a school holiday today to celebrate the birth of the first male heir to the throne to be born in 16 years.

The prince, still unnamed, was born to Crown Princess Beatrix Thursday night. Doctors called him a "robust and healthy boy."

Several hundred persons had gathered around the Academic Hospital in Utrecht to await the birth. When it was announced, others poured into the streets, chanting "Orange boven" (Orange up, for the royal house of Orange).

Other crowds tied up traffic in the Hague, seat of the Dutch government.

Church bells rang and cannons boomed 101 times. A girl would have been given only 51 guns.

Queens have reigned in Holland since 1890 and it may be the 21st century before the new prince ascends to the throne. His mother, Beatrix, is expected to take the throne in seven years when her mother, Queen Juliana, reaches age 65. Beatrix is only 29.

Sources at the hospital indicated the delivery was by Caesarean section and took about 30 minutes. A medical bulletin said the condition of the crown princess was satisfactory.

Prof. Willem Paul Plate, who supervised the delivery, said the baby weighed 8 pounds, 7 ounces. A nurse said he had black hair.

Beatrix was married March 10, 1966, to a German, Claus von Amsberg, who was made a prince of the Netherlands. The marriage was unpopular with some Dutchmen because he had served in the German army in the latter part of World War II, when Holland was occupied by the Nazis.

By coincidence, a sister of Prince Claus gave birth to a son Thursday in Germany.

Only Route For Victory Is Outlined By Westmoreland

Unrelenting Pressure Is Only Method

Says All Levels Of VC Culture Must Be Attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland told Congress today the only strategy that can defeat the Communist enemy in Vietnam "is one of unrelenting military, political and psychological pressure on his whole structure—at all levels."

This appeared a call for increased escalation, possibly including broadened bombing of North Vietnam and commitment of more U.S. troops to battle Communist forces in South Vietnam.

In an unprecedented personal report to Congress by a war commander, Westmoreland described U.S. forces as "unbeatable" and said they have been successful in destroying Communist main force units.

He said, "I can assure you here and now" that the Communist stratagem called "war of national liberation" will not succeed in Vietnam.

But while speaking of a "hopeful state of affairs," the U.S. commander in Vietnam sought to dispel any idea that the Communists are near collapse.

His remarks were in a prepared speech.

Later he was to brief governors, congressional leaders and Cabinet members at a White House luncheon.

In considerable detail, Westmoreland pictured for a joint meeting of House and Senate an enemy who has doubled his strength despite heavy battle losses, whose commanders are skilled professionals, whose troops are well trained, whose primitive supply system is surprisingly effective.

"I foresee that he will continue his buildup across the demilitarized zone and through Laos, and he will attack us when he believes he has a chance for a dramatic blow," the general predicted.

"I expect the enemy to continue to increase his mortar, artillery, rocket and recoilless rifle attacks on our installations. At the same time he will step up his attacks on hamlet, village and district organizations to intimidate the people and to thwart the democratic processes now under way in South Vietnam."

Extension Requested By Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson urged Congress today to extend for 45 days the no strike period covering a dispute between the nation's railroads and six shop craft unions.

The row now is in the closing stages of a 20-day no-strike period authorized by Congress and this ends at 12:01 a.m. next Tuesday.

House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., announced the President's request will be taken up in the House Monday.

If no progress is made toward a settlement, Johnson notified Congress he would submit a proposal for legislation to cope with this one case. White House officials were unwilling to talk, however, in terms of compulsory arbitration.

A 45-day extension added to the present one would run to June 17.

Johnson repeatedly has said a rail strike would be a national catastrophe, harmful to the nation's economy, health and the war effort in Vietnam.

Maj. Gen. John C. McLaughlin

John McLaughlin, Noted Sedalia Businessman, Dies

Maj. General John Charles "Jack" McLaughlin, III, (Ret.), well-known Sedalia businessman and president of McLaughlin Bros. Furniture Co., died at noon Thursday at the Boone County Hospital, Columbia, while undergoing emergency surgery. He became suddenly ill shortly before 7 a.m. with a heart ailment at his home, 1509 West Fourth, and was rushed to Columbia in an ambulance, accompanied by Mrs. McLaughlin and his brother, Philip McLaughlin.

Gen. McLaughlin was born in Sedalia, June 21, 1903, son of the late John C. McLaughlin Sr. and Alice Miner. He attended Broadway School and was graduated from the Staunton Military Academy in 1921. He attended the University of Missouri from 1921 to 1924, returning to Sedalia before graduation, following the death of his father.

His education at Staunton Military Academy instilled in him a deep interest in military affairs and he became a dedicated military man which took him on a military career through the Missouri National Guard from October, 1924 until his retirement on June 29, 1960. He was commissioned a first lieutenant in the old 128th Field Artillery Regiment, Missouri National Guard Regiment. In October, 1925, he was promoted to captain and served with his unit throughout the pre-World War II years.

In 1938 he was appointed Regimental S-3 in charge of operations and entered federal service in November, 1940. He was promoted to major in June, 1941 and served as Executive Officer, 128th Field Artillery Regiment, until June, 1942, when he was promoted to Lt. Colonel and transferred to the 17th Field Artillery as battalion commander.

In August, 1942, he was ordered overseas as Regimental Executive Officer, of the 17th Field Artillery, going first to England. He then participated in the invasion and campaigns of North Africa, Sicily and Italy, moving into the campaigns of Southern France, up through the Rhineland, Germany and Central Europe. In the spring of 1944 he became Commanding Officer of the 17th Field Artillery Group, and was subsequently promoted to colonel.

Dodd Vows To Fight Resolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders indicated today the resolution to censure Sen. Thomas J. Dodd will be taken up in about 10 days. Dodd vowed to fight it and, whatever the outcome, to run for a third term in 1970.

The Senate's bipartisan Ethics Committee unanimously recommended Thursday after a 14-month investigation that the white-haired Connecticut Democrat be censured for financial misconduct.

None of Dodd's colleagues spoke out immediately in his defense, but he was quick to reassert he had done nothing wrong and said he would make a detailed reply to the committee's findings.

In its report to the Senate the panel said Dodd diverted to "his personal purposes" at least $116,083 in politically raised campaign and testimonial funds in the years 1961-65.

It also said that in this same period he collected travel expenses both from the Senate and private organizations for seven trips. It did not list the total amount involved in the double billing.

The proposed resolution of censure declared that in both respects Dodd's conduct was "contrary to accepted morals, derogates from the public trust expected of a senator, and tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute."

The committee also requested the Justice Department and Internal Revenue Service to look into various aspects of Dodd's activities to determine whether any possible violations of law were involved.

The report and the censure resolution were presented to the Senate by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the six-member ethics panel, as Dodd looked on among only a handful of senators on the floor.

Dodd showed no emotion or loss of composure as Stennis spoke.

Shortly before Stennis rose in the Senate he went by Dodd's office and gave him a copy of the report. Stennis later told a reporter he felt he owed this gesture of courtesy to Dodd.

Three New Satellites Into Orbit

Two Robot Nuclear Test Detectors Also Sent Aloft

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. — (AP) — Flying with acrobatic precision, a powerful Titan 3 rocket today successfully orbited three scientific satellites and two robot sentries to police against violations of the nuclear test ban treaty.

"Everything looks very good," an Air Force spokesman reported at 9:21 a.m. after all five satellites sprung free from the booster's last stage.

The five-in-one shot, grounded one week by pesky problems, blasted off at 5:01 a.m. after a perfect countdown. Two strap-on motors licked the early-morning darkness with twin tongues of flame as the Titan 3 shot skyward from Cape Kennedy.

The rocket's last stage, with payloads attached, first darted into a medium-altitude orbit as planned, then re-ignited more than four hours later to kick the payload into a cigar-shaped path ranging from 5,300 to 69,000 miles above the earth — nearly one-third the distance to the moon.

The mighty Air Force rocket — similar to the type that will someday launch astronauts aboard the Defense Department's Manned Orbiting Laboratory — licked the early morning darkness with brilliant plumes of flame from two strap-on booster motors.

AM Finds Answer To Its Problem

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors reportedly has taken a giant step toward solving its financial problems by selling its financing subsidiary, Redisco, Inc. to Chrysler Corp.

The sale was confirmed today by unimpeachable sources. They told The Associated Press that formal announcement of the deal is scheduled for next Tuesday.

American Motors' board of directors meets Monday and is expected to announce a $30-million loss for the first six months of its current fiscal year.

There was no official confirmation from either American Motors or Chrysler regarding the sale.

Chrysler Board Chairman Lynn A. Townsend told newsmen April 18, "We are continuing to look at Redisco but no decision has been made yet."

Redisco, whose annual profit was estimated at between $3 million and $4 million, reportedly carried a price tag of over $30 million.

First Round Action

Yearly Legislative Sessions Approved

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House gave first-round approval Thursday to a proposed constitutional change calling for annual legislative sessions.

Advancement came after the sponsors fended off amendments that would have spelled out in the constitution authority for increased expense allowances for the legislators — on the theory the governor would reject the whole idea of annual sessions if the plan also carried big money increases for the lawmakers.

Rejected were: An increase of the $10 a day expense allowance to $25 for each legislator during a session of the General Assembly.

Two proposals for giving legislators extra expense money during the periods between legislative sessions.

But the proposed constitution change still carries expense provisions that may cause voters to take a second look.

One section says the $10 a day expense allowance shall be retained unless the legislature should change the amount by law. Now the constitution provides only for up to $10 a day expenses with no authority for the legislature to change that.

Another section eliminates the present limit on the number of legislative employees. The constitution now allows the House 125 employees and the Senate 75.

There has been recent pressure for more and highly specialized legislative staffs to keep the General Assembly abreast of changing technological and sociological changes.

Otherwise, the proposal calls for:

A session in odd-numbered years with automatic adjournment May 31. Legislation left over could be considered by the session in even-numbered years.

A session in even-numbered years to end finally May 15 with no floor action on any bills after April 30.

Clocks Move Up One Hour

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Forty-five states will go on Daylight Saving Time Sunday.

The clocks will be put ahead one hour in these states where 180 million of the nation's estimated 198 million residents live.

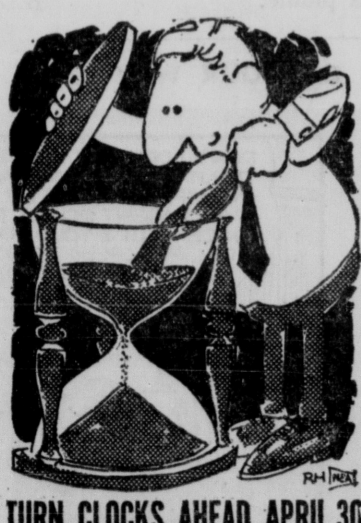

Congress enacted a law directing all states — except those in which legislatures vote exemption — to observe Daylight Saving Time from 2 a.m. the last Sunday in April until 2 a.m. the last Sunday in October.

An Associated Press survey showed today which states are not going along with the majority, and why.

Hawaii's legislators voted exemption.

Michigan's legislature voted exemption, but a petition drive was started to put the question before the voters.

The federal government exempted Alaska from compliance with the Uniform Time Act this year to allow time to delineate the four time zones in the state. Gov. Roger D. Branigin has counties in the eastern zone will stay on standard time.

Thirty-four Indiana counties in the central time zone already are, in effect, on daylight time. They choose to synchronize with the capital, Indianapolis, in the eastern time zone. The other 15 counties in the central zone will push clocks ahead an hour Sunday.

Kentucky — like Indiana, it straddles the eastern-central line — persuaded federal officials to excuse the state from observing the time law this year. Kentucky had scheduled no legislative session this year, and a special session would cost about $250,000.

Some Kentucky towns plan to observe daylight time voluntarily this summer. The result is that the state will have four times — central and eastern standard and central and eastern daylight.

South Dakota, which will shift to daylight time, will place the issue before the voters next year.

We Must Buy, What-Was-It?

The head of a big advertising agency has disclosed that television tycoons will soon experiment with fewer but longer commercials.

Conceding for the sake of argument that television commercials CAN be longer than some of them seem to be now it is interesting to contemplate the potentials of the proposed three-minute or even 10-minute—yes, 10-MINUTE—air plug.

A homemade survey indicates that a reasonably agile television viewer can in three minutes hoist himself out of his chair, waddle briskly to the kitchen, open the icebox door, make a quick inventory of what he sees, grab enough food and drink to sustain him for another hour, and be back in his seat by the time the movie of the night is resumed.

In a 10-minute commercial spot, the same viewer can do all the above, make a phone call, splash a little water on his face to keep him awake, and maybe even have time to ask his wife where their teen-age kid is before pop has to be back on duty in front of The Set.

Now the average television viewer is going to appreciate this and have a warm feeling for the advertiser who so thoughtfully allows him so much time to regroup himself for further viewing.

The customer relationship may, in fact, be so enhanced that the viewer will be genuinely sorry he didn't have a chance all evening to find out what the advertiser was selling.

Especially if the viewer ever finds out that the thoughtful advertiser's product is a rival brand of the snack the viewer grabbed out of the icebox to munch on as he enjoyed the entertainment provided by the thoughtful advertiser whose product the grateful viewer is eschewing instead of chewing.

But then, as a confused observer once said, "you can't win 'em all."

U.S. Postal Reform

Postmaster General Laurence O'Brien has used his practical head to suggest that the "always in the red" Post Office Department be removed from the Cabinet and placed under a non-profit government corporation run by a board of directors. This board would be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Congress.

Mr. O'Brien has two jobs. His title is that of Postmaster General, and he has Cabinet rank but he is also President Johnson's chief legislative officer. O'Brien is irked by inefficiency in the Post Office Department. He has no control over the workload (about 80 million pieces of mail this year), the amount of revenue taken in, salary scales for his employees, the physical facilities that house postal operations, or the postal deficit which amounts to $1.2 billion this year.

The control of the Post Office Department rests in the Congress which sets rates and salaries, appropriates funds to make up deficits, and, to a large extent, determines who will get the jobs of postmaster and letter carrier.

The Department gained Cabinet status under President Andrew Jackson 138 years ago, but the patronage factor has lost some importance since postmasters and rural letter carriers were brought under the Hatch Act in 1930. This prohibits them from taking

Different Rules for Congressmen

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The congressional system of two rules for ethical conduct, one for a Negro congressman from Harlem, the other for a white senator from Connecticut, is accentuated by the manner in which the House of Representatives permitted four white Mississippi congressmen to be seated at the beginning of the 89th Congress.

Most people have forgotten it, but it was the same House administration committee which recommended severe discipline for Adam Clayton Powell which also dilly-dallied, pussy-footed, procrastinated and finally maneuvered so the four white Mississippians could keep their seats in Congress. Under the law of 1870, by which Mississippi was readmitted to the union after the Civil War, every citizen of Mississippi must be given the right to vote. As a result, Rep. William Fitts Ryan, D-N. Y., at the opening of the 89th Congress, challenged the right of the Mississippi congressmen to take their seats on the ground that more than one-third of the citizens of Mississippi, namely the Negroes, had been deprived of their right to vote.

At this point Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., threw the full weight of the Johnson administration behind seating the Mississippi congressmen. A roll call vote showed 148 congressmen opposed to seating the Mississippians, and the matter was finally referred to the House Administration Committee. Meanwhile the white Mississippians, unlike Adam Clayton Powell, were permitted to take their seats and serve as full-voting, full-salary-drawing congressmen.

Thanks to a lot of hocus-pocus by the House Administration Committee which cut the ground out from under Powell, the Mississippians remained there for the entire session.

Runaround Roberts
The Mississippi Democratic Freedom Party, which had challenged them, had gone to great lengths to collect sworn affidavits all over the state showing how Negroes by the thousands had been refused the vote in the 1964 election. The Mississippi congressmen became so alarmed that they hired ex-Gov. Jim Coleman as their counsel. Coleman later was rewarded by President Johnson with appointment to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, where he sits today. The Negro challengers were rewarded with an amazing runaround by the House clerk, Ralph Roberts, and by the House Administration Committee.

Under the law, a contested election must be ruled upon by the House within six part in open political activity. Members of Congress no longer consider these appointments a political plum because they make as many enemies from persons they do not appoint as friends from those they do.

Larry O'Brien's plan may find some approval in Congress. President Johnson thinks the idea is "worthy of intensive study." The Postmaster General seems anxious to turn the headaches over to a quasi-private agency, and he also appears eager to give up his job. His plan suggests a way out of the "restrictive jungle of legislation and custom that has grown up around his department" for nearly one hundred years. Perhaps it will alert the congress to do something to speed up the mail and improve the many conditions which cause the nation such a large annual deficit.

months — in this case, July 4. But two months after July 4 the House Administration Committee, which meat-axed Adam Clayton Powell, had still refused to make a report to the full Congress.

Meanwhile, Clerk Roberts at first said he would print the record of the affidavits denying Negroes the right to vote, then reversed himself, finally printed the record with this notation at the top: "I hereby find that this testimony should not be printed." This put him on both sides of the controversy.

Meanwhile when Mississippi Negroes tried to file their briefs on June 29, Roberts made them refile on July 30. This 30-day delay gave the Mississippi white congressmen another 30 days in which to file their briefs, and pushed the final showdown to near the time of congressional adjournment.

More Red Tape
Roberts then demanded that the challengers file 280 extra copies of their briefs, not 70 copies which they were told to supply at first. It took extra time to scrounge up 280 additional copies.

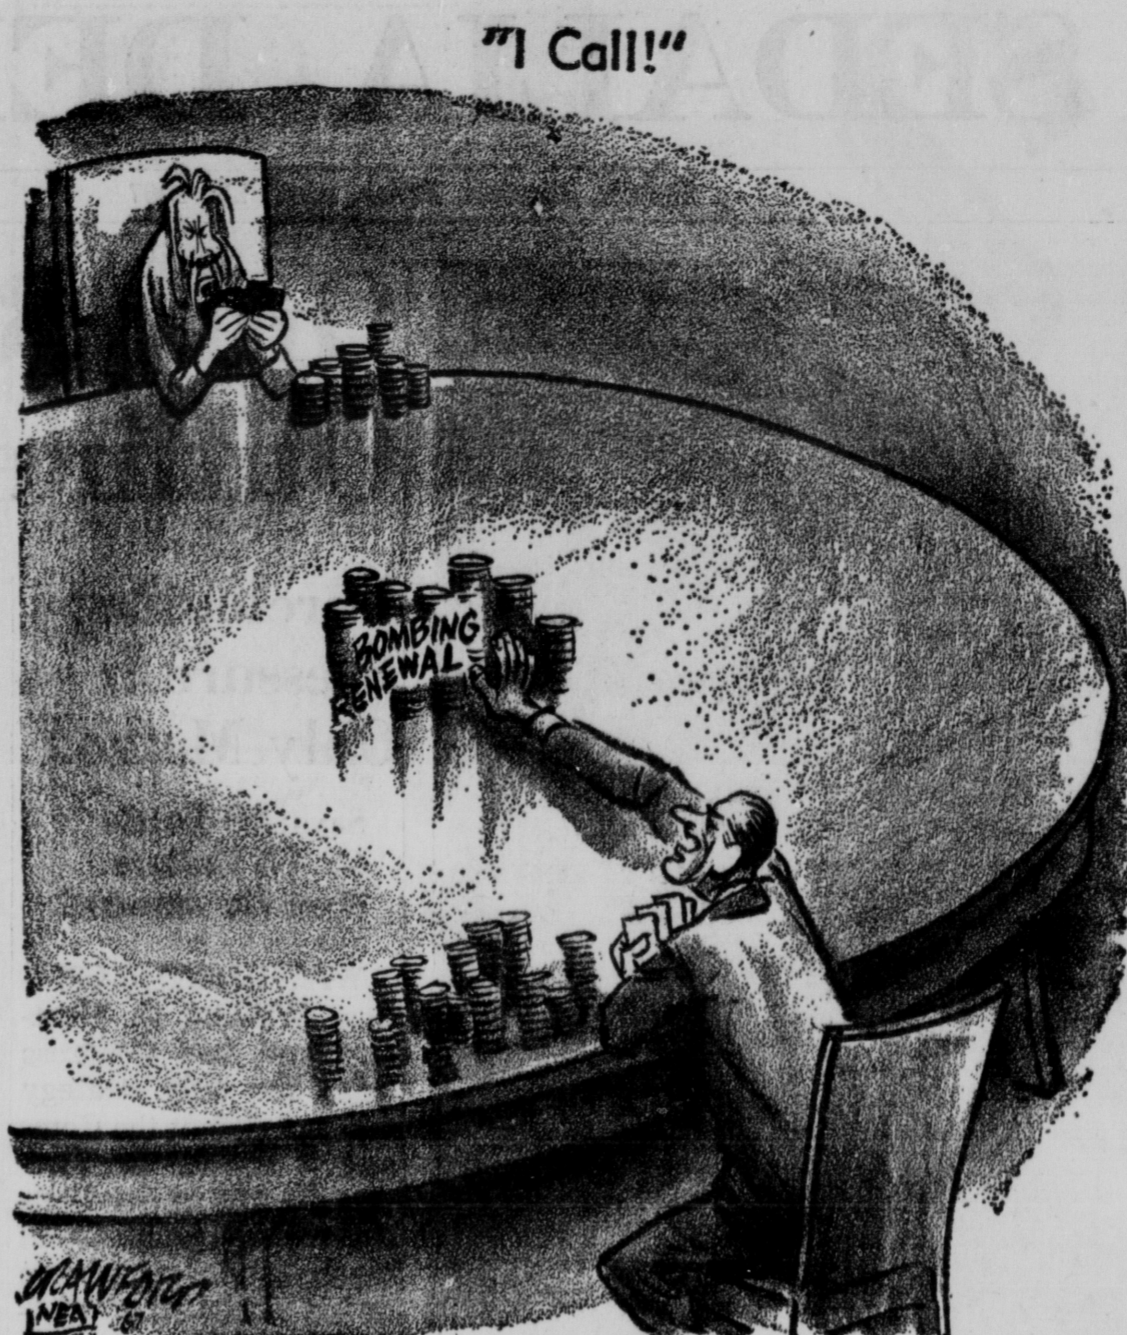

Following this, Roberts demanded that the names of the four white congressmen be stricken from the brief.

Finally, he failed to print the record of Rep. John Bell Williams, the Mississippi Democrat who campaigned for Goldwater, on the ground that the challenge against Williams was unsigned. Actually the challenge handed to Williams himself was signed, the carbon copy handed to the clerk as a courtesy was not.

On such technicalities did the powerful administration leaders of Congress manipulate until it was September 17. By that time the congressional session was about over for 1965 — and most congressmen figured it was too late to unseat the white Mississippians. They had already served most of the year.

If the House leadership and the Johnson administration had given a break to the Mississippi challengers under the law of 1870 and the Constitution of the United States, things would be a lot different for LBJ in Congress today.

Most important difference would have been the fact that the House Rules Committee, one of the most powerful agencies on Capitol Hill, would not now be under the chairmanship of Rep. William Colmer of Mississippi, who has voted against Johnson on almost every issue. Colmer would have lost his place in Congress, and the House Rules Committee would be under forthright Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana, a strong Johnson supporter.

Wallace Is Hard Man To Pin To Facts

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trying to pin down Alabama's former governor, George C. Wallace, at this point in his political career is like trying to squeeze ice cream.

Earlier this week he indicated he might run for president in 1968, but he wouldn't say so. Thursday at Pittsburgh he told newsmen "since I am running for president" and then backtracked, saying the newsmen had him mixed up.

If he did run, he certainly couldn't win. But if he took enough votes away from Democratic and Republican candidates so that neither got a majority, the election would have to be thrown into the House of Representatives.

Last Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" he was asked if this threat to run for president was just "to blackmail one of the parties into accepting your view?" Wallace harps on the need for conservative candidates and party platforms.

Wallace denied any thought of blackmail but earlier this year announced that if the two national parties "don't swing around and fly right in 1968" he would be preaching the conservative cause from coast to coast.

When he ran in 1964 — that is, before he dropped out of the race — he said his purpose was to "conservatize" the two big parties and, if he could keep either from winning, he would gain a pro-Southern bargaining position.

Wallace withdrew from that

Secretaries Are Dealing With 'Delicate' Problem

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — As members of the National Secretaries Association observe secretaries week — April 23-29 — they are dealing, as usual, with the sensitive problem of men. All their tact must be used, for many male eyes are on them.

The problem is this: Men are knocking at the association's door in this age of equality, but the bylaws won't admit them. Secretaries are women, as far as the girls are concerned. All their literature refers to "her" and "she."

Being efficient and realistic, however, the association now has a committee studying the situation, presumably in order to make a report at the annual meeting in Toronto this July.

These women understand discrimination by sex. Eighty years ago it was forecast their minds would snap doing office work. Now two-thirds of the nation's clerical workers are women, some seven million of them.

The reason men now want to be included is the growing professional status of the secretary, a status which brings with it a greatly increased salary. Some executive secretaries make $20,000 a year, and $8,000 to $15,000 is not unusual.

Estimates of male secretaries today place the number at 20,000, with many of these supposedly working for railroads. Others are in jobs that require much travel or night work. Many could be called administrative assistants.

It is difficult, in fact, to say just what makes a secretary. The national association has 25,000 members with these averages: 17 years a secretary, owns own home, car, has savings and some stock, is married and has a salary of $5,678.

The association defines a secretary this way:

"An assistant to an executive, possessing mastery of office skills and ability to assume responsibility without direct supervision, who displays initiative, exercises judgment and makes decisions within the scope of her authority." Note the "her."

More often, however, the secretary gets tickets on planes and to shows that are filled, keeps executives organized on lunch dates and board meetings, writes speeches, reads mail, short circuits nuisance telephone calls, remembers dates, bills due, letters, haircuts and commas.

In fact, a Labor Department survey once turned up nearly 900 specific duties performed by secretaries. And in performing these duties, chief executives reportedly rate attributes in this order:

Secretarial skills, judgment, loyalty, initiative, diplomacy, appearance, ability to make decisions, cooperation, punctuality, flexibility.

An idea of how the secretary's duties have evolved is illustrated by the Certified Professional Secretary examination to be given May 5 and 6 at various colleges in the United States and Canada. These are the supersecretaries:

To qualify, a candidate must have a minimum of three years experience and four years or more of college or, at the other extreme of education-experience, eight years of experience if not a high school graduate.

It's the Law In Missouri

QUESTION: Where property is placed in joint tenancy with right of survivorship is it possible for one of the parties to terminate the tenancy so that the survivor may not get all of the property?

FACTS: Jake, a widower, wanted to leave his farm to his only son, Hank, when he died. So Jake put the farm into joint tenancy with Hank with right of survivorship so Hank would get the farm without probate. Hank later was sued for divorce by his wife Trixie.

In the divorce settlement Hank agreed to give Trixie a half of his interest in the farm on which Jake was still living and in the property settlement he deeded her a 1/4th interest.

Trixie then started a lawsuit to have the farm partitioned or sold so she could get a quarter of the farm immediately. Both Hank and Jake argued she couldn't because Jake only intended for Hank to have the farm after his father died, and no interest before that time.

Can Trixie get any part of the farm?

Yes—Trixie can get a quarter of the farm without waiting for Jake to die. When Jake made Hank a joint tenant in the farm, Hank got a present interest in the property. The deed gave Trixie half of Hank's interest and that "severed", or ended, the joint tenancy and made Jake, Hank and Trixie tenants in common to the farm.

Trixie could sue to require that the farm be divided up and a fourth be given to her, either in land or money value of the farm.

Jake learned, too late, that putting the farm into joint tenancy to cut out a probate of his estate did a lot more than give Hank the farm after he died.

This type of tenancy must not be confused with a tenancy vested in a husband and wife which is called tenancy by the entireties because it can be terminated only by agreement of both parties, or the death of one.

Confident Clay Will Not Go To Jail Or The Army

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — "The champ will never go to jail," attorneys for Cassius Clay insisted today as they prepared to continue the legal battle for the heavyweight champion against the government's military draft.

"We plan to refile our suit immediately after Clay refuses induction," said Quinlan Hodges of Houston, one of Clay's two attorneys. "It may be a long, drawn-out procedure, but it's one we're confident we'll win."

"We're sure of a final victory," added Hayden Covington of New York. "Muhammad will never be put behind bars."

The heavyweight champion, known as Muhammad Ali to his Black Muslim brothers, reports today at the Customs House here for induction into the military service.

He emphasized that he would go through the physical and mental tests but would balk when asked to take one step forward, the symbol of entering the service.

"I will go to jail first — I will die for my religion," Clay said. The champion lost a final effort Thursday to avoid criminal action resulting from his refusal to serve — an action punishable by a $10,000 fine, five years in prison, or both. Prison terms are the normal procedure.

Clay's attorneys sought a temporary restraining order in U.S. District Court but Judge Allen B. Hannay held he had no reason to tie the government's hands.

The champion's 1A draft status had been upheld previously in a federal court at Louisville, Ky., and the U.S. Appeals Court in Cincinnati. The U.S. Supreme Court twice refused to review the case.

Attorneys for the champion have filed a 67-page lawsuit challenging the structure of the entire Selective Service System. They contend Clay was discriminated against because of the unpopularity of the Black Muslim religion and that he wasn't given a fair deal by Texas draft boards without Negro representation.

Astros Snap Losing Skein With 6-4 Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Houston Astros snapped a 10-game losing streak Thursday night at the expense of the St. Louis Cardinals, defeating the Redbirds 6-4 and knocking them out of a tie for first place in National League standings.

A five-run seventh inning gave the Astros the victory.

St. Louis returns home tonight to take on the Pittsburgh Pirates. Ray Washburn, 0-1, has the starting assignment. The Pittsburgh starter was expected to be Woody Fryman, 0-0.

The Kansas City Athletics, idle Thursday, go to Boston today to play the Red Sox. Jim Hunter, 2-0, was expected to draw the A's starting assignment. Jim Lonborg, 11-0, was probable starter for Boston.

Joe Morgan walloped a three-run triple that powered Houston to victory. He also doubled in the fifth inning.

Morgan's triple came off Hal Woodeshick, who relieved loser Bob Gibson with the bases loaded and none out.

Eddie Mathews doubled in another run and the fifth score of the big inning came on Sonny Jackson's sacrifice fly.

Tripled by Mike Shannon and Tim McCarver and Bobby Tolan's single gave the Cardinals an early 2-0 lead in the fourth inning. The Cards added two more runs in the eighth.

Larry Dierker, who left in the seventh inning for a pinch hitter, was the winner.

Eugene Over S-C Tigers In Baseball

Eugene defeated the Smith-Cotton Tigers in a non-conference baseball game played at Liberty Park Thursday, 6-3.

Eugene lead all the way as they scored one run in the first inning, one run in the second, and three runs in the seventh inning to account for all of their scoring. Eugene had two home runs in the game. The first was in the second inning by Danny Leppen with bases empty. The other homer for Eugene came in the seventh by Wilbur Calarston with two on base. This proved to be the margin of difference for the game. The winning pitcher for Eugene was Ronnie Call. He pitched six innings and had two strikeouts. He was relieved in the seventh by Anthony Buschjost.

The Tigers scored one run in the fourth inning, another in the sixth on Ray Murray's home run, and their final run in the seventh. Starting pitcher for the Tigers was Pat Robertson, who pitched 1 1/3 innings. He was relieved in the second by Terry Arnold, who pitched 4 2/3 innings, and was relieved in the seventh by Mike Kraxburger, who was the losing pitcher for the Tigers.

The next game for the Tigers will be Friday night when they travel to Jefferson City for a conference game against the Jays.

new suit plus the supplemental argument that Clay, having failed to enter the service, has exhausted all his administrative recourses, opening the door for new legal action. Clay seeks exemption as a Black Muslim minister.

U.S. Atty. Morton Susman, whose job will be to file criminal action against Clay once he has refused induction, admitted that the proceedings might take weeks and months before he can get an indictment.

"Cassius will be free to keep on fighting and preaching," Susman said.

Clay, wearing a continental-cut blue suit, appeared on the witness stand for more than an hour in his own behalf Thursday. Speaking calmly and seriously, he told of his conversion to the Islam faith and his sincerity in it.

"I have already lost some $5 million because of my religious beliefs and they say I'll lose $10 million more," he said. "People don't think I am serious. I assure you I am."

He said he resented the fact that he would be treated as a criminal.

"I'm not a criminal. I've never been in jail," he said. "I am one of 750 million Muslims. We don't believe in war unless it is a holy war ordered by Allah."

Potential Super Star In Bradley

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knickerbockers think Bill Bradley can be a super star of the future to rival Wilt Chamberlain, Bill Russell, Oscar Robertson, Jerry Lucas, Rick Barry, Elgin Baylor and Jerry West.

"For the first time we have a potential super star," said Ned Irish, president of the Knicks Thursday when it was announced Bradley had signed a four-year contract believed to call for close to $500,000.

"I don't say he'll do it," said Irish. "But he has a chance to do it."

Bradley, an American at Oxford for two years as a Rhodes scholar, was drafted by the Knicks when he came out of Princeton in 1965 as a celebrated All-America and Olympic star. He chose to continue his studies.

"We had several meetings with Bradley and his lawyer, Larry Fleisher," said Irish. "This covered a period of several weeks while Bill was home on vacation. He had to return to Oxford last Friday but flew back Tuesday and Irving Felt and I completed the arrangements Wednesday night."

Although no terms were announced, Felt, chairman of the board of Madison Square Garden, which owns the National Basketball Association club, said, "To my knowledge the contract is for one of the largest money amounts ever paid a professional athlete in a team sport."

Willie Mays, the highest-salaried baseball player, gets $125,000 a year. Boxers make more, but they are not in a team sport. The Knicks will have to wait before cashing in on their investment in Bradley because he is in the Air Force and will be on active duty from July until January. Presumably, he will join the club in mid-season.

Bradley, 23, is a 6-foot-5, 205-pounder, did not play last winter except for sporadic appearances with a team at Oxford University which he described as "something like cricket at Crystal City" (his home town in Missouri).

After leading Princeton to third place in the NCAA tournament in 1965, Bradley played amateur ball with an Italian team at Milan in 1965-66.

"I hope I can perform capably for the Knickerbockers," said Bradley, attired in a light blue Knick blazer. "There was that nagging thought I had in Europe that I wasn't playing against the best. This should not be construed to mean that I want to show I'm better. There is great question in my own mind."

Bradley said he had been approached by the New York team of the new American Basketball Association, a potential rival to the NBA.

"My decision has been made," he said with a note of finality. "I would just as soon not say anything about money."

Bradley, an articulate young man whose ultimate ambition is "to be of service to other people," did his best to explain his reason for playing pro. He apologized for fear his words might sound trite.

"The main factor was that I really found, during my two years away, something that I suspected all along. I love the game of basketball. I know this may sound trite but that is the way I feel."

Oklahoma Coach Dies At Age 37

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Jim Mackenzie, the man who came to the University of Oklahoma to rebuild it into a national football powerhouse, died of an apparent heart attack early today. He was 37.

Mackenzie had returned Thursday night from a recruiting trip to Amarillo, Tex.

Mackenzie collapsed at his home about 12:20 a.m. His daughter, Kathy, 11, summoned Galen Hall, an assistant coach, who lives across the street.

Hall gave him artificial respiration and ambulance attendants tried external heart massage, but he was pronounced dead on arrival at Norman Municipal Hospital by Dr. G.G. Willard, the family physician, at 12:50 a.m.

The death stunned the state. Mackenzie had coached his Sooners through spring drills on Wednesday, and apparently hadn't been in ill health.

Shackles Giants

Mel Queen Turns Talent To Pitching

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mel Queen was such a poor hitter as an outfielder he turned to pitching, and now he is passing on his meager batting average to others.

The right-handed Cincinnati hurler has taken particular interest in San Francisco with his gift-giving treatment that has turned the slugging Giants into hitless pignims.

Queen stumped the Giants on three hits and one run for seven innings Thursday as the Reds won 3-2 and retook first place in the National League from the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cardinals fell back when Houston scored five runs in the seventh inning and held on for a 6-4 triumph, breaking a 10-game losing streak.

Elsewhere in the National League, Claude Osteen pitched Los Angeles past Atlanta 6-0, Ferguson Jenkins of the Chicago Cubs halted the New York Mets 3-0 and Pittsburgh nudged Philadelphia 5-4.

Cleveland dropped Minneapolis 5-4 in the American League as pinch-hitter Willie Smith doubled home the winning run in the eighth inning. The Twins had rallied from a 4-4 deficit against Sam McDowell on Bob Allison's three-run homer and an RBI double by Rich Rollins.

California was rained out at Baltimore.

The 25-year-old Queen, who first passed on his bad hitting habits to the Giants by blanking them on six-hits 6-0 in his only other major league start April 16, got his message across to everyone but Willie McCovey. McCovey homered in the seventh.

Queen, now 30, left after walking the first man in the eighth, leading 3-1 on Deron Johnson's sixth homer with a man on off loser Gaylord Perry and Vada Pinson's run-scoring hit. Reliever Ted Abernathy finished the lesson.

Queen, a relief pitcher who only got into the starting rotation because Jim Maloney suffered shoulder trouble, came into the major leagues as an outfielder with a strong throwing arm three years ago.

His below .200 batting average did not set the Reds afire. So, he returned to the mound for the first time since high school.

Test Flight Is Delayed
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Development problems will delay the first unmanned test flights of the Saturn 5 moon rocket and a lunar-landing vehicle until the last half of this year, the space agency says.
Both launches previously were scheduled to occur before the end of June.
The 360-foot-tall Saturn 5 is the type of rocket America plans to use to send three Apollo astronauts into orbit around the moon. The moon-landing craft, called a Lunar Module, is to carry two of the Apollo crew from there to the moon's surface.
Sources said the Saturn 5 is now scheduled for its initial test flight in mid-August. The spider-legged lunar-landing craft is not expected to rocket into orbit on its first unmanned test until late September or early October.
The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said only that both launches had slipped from the "second quarter" (April-June) to the "third quarter" (July-September) of this year.
Numerous problems have been encountered in developing the moon-landing vehicle, the second stage of the Saturn 5 and an unmanned Apollo spacecraft which is to ride atop the first Saturn 5.
The Apollo 1 spacecraft fire that killed Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee has made the space agency more sensitive to problem areas, sources said.

Guard Aircraft Crashes; Crew Escapes Injury
WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Two members of the Mississippi National Guard escaped injury Thursday when their single-engine plane crash landed on a farm 14 miles south of Warrensburg.
The pilot was identified as Capt. James H. Burns, 32, of Jackson, Miss. Also aboard was Maj. Leonard Tingle, 35, also of Jackson.
The Missouri Highway Patrol said the plane was on a training flight from Jackson to Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. The craft had gassed up at Springfield, Mo., shortly before it crashed.
The pilot said he decided to crash land the plane when he thought he would lose his propeller. The plane was demolished.

Death Penalty Is Revived By Iowans
DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa House rejected Thursday a bill to revive the death penalty, but only for slaying a law enforcement officer doing his duty.
The vote was 66 to 54.
The 1965 legislature abolished capital punishment. The bill to revive it would change the method of execution from hanging to electrocution.
Rep. John Duffy, D-Dubuque, argued against the bill:
"It would throw modern penology to the winds. You cannot rehabilitate a dead man."
Rep. Maurice van Nostrand, R-Avoca, argued:
"There is no proven case where a person executed for murder ever perpetrated another killing. In this regard, the death penalty is a deterrent."

Truckers Tied Up By Walk-Out

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A wildcat strike of several hundred Teamsters tied up some trucking operations in St. Louis Thursday night.

A police lieutenant suffered a broken arm and two trucking company employees were slightly injured in a scuffle outside the Yellow Freight System terminal, police reported.

About 30 officers were rushed to the dock where police estimated that between 150 and 200 men had congregated. The injured officer, Lt. Robert Truetkin, is acting commander of the police mobile reserve.

At least 25 St. Louis trucking firms reported picketing. Most of the picket lines, they said, consisted of six to eight men each.

Matt Abksoud, president of Teamsters local 600, described the strike as unauthorized and illegal. He said he spent most of the day trying to talk the men out of it.

The two Yellow Transit employees injured in the scuffle were arrested, police said.

It was reported the strikers walked out in sympathy with a dispute between Teamsters and cartage companies in Chicago where 1,000 carriers have been idled by a four-day combination strike and lockout.

Test Flight Is Delayed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Development problems will delay the first unmanned test flights of the Saturn 5 moon rocket and a lunar-landing vehicle until the last half of this year, the space agency says.

Both launches previously were scheduled to occur before the end of June.

The 360-foot-tall Saturn 5 is the type of rocket America plans to use to send three Apollo astronauts into orbit around the moon. The moon-landing craft, called a Lunar Module, is to carry two of the Apollo crew from there to the moon's surface.

Sources said the Saturn 5 is now scheduled for its initial test flight in mid-August. The spider-legged lunar-landing craft is not expected to rocket into orbit on its first unmanned test until late September or early October.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said only that both launches had slipped from the "second quarter" (April-June) to the "third quarter" (July-September) of this year.

Numerous problems have been encountered in developing the moon-landing vehicle, the second stage of the Saturn 5 and an unmanned Apollo spacecraft which is to ride atop the first Saturn 5.

The Apollo 1 spacecraft fire that killed Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee has made the space agency more sensitive to problem areas, sources said.

First Degree Murder Charges Are Filed
KANSAS CITY (AP) — A first degree murder charge was filed against Richard K. Goodwin, 17, in the fatal shooting of a father of 11.
McCormick J. Holmes, 57, a service station attendant, was shot seven times in a holdup at the station Wednesday night. Police said some of the shots were fired from a range of three or four inches.
Goodwin was arrested when he was being treated at Research Hospital for a gunshot wound in his left forearm.
Maj. William Redmon, chief of detectives, said Holmes apparently engaged the holdup man in a gun battle.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

In 1895, Simon I. Patino bought a small piece of land in his native Bolivia. He believed the land was rich in tin, which he hoped to mine, says The World Almanac. The claim produced nothing of value until 1899, when he hit a vein of tin. When the ore was analyzed, it was found to contain 54 to 60 percent pure tin, worth $500 a ton and, within a few years, Patino was one of the richest men in the world.

Mrs. Wineburger was a passenger in a 1962 Chevrolet, driven north on 65 by Lawrence Junior Wineburger, 32, Cole Camp, when it was in collision with a 1965 Chevrolet stationwagon, driven north on 65 by Lyle B. Cummings, 45, Clinton.

The accident occurred when the stationwagon had stopped for a car which was in front of him attempting to make a left turn. The Wineburger car was unable to stop and ran into the rear end of the Cummings car. The Wineburger car was towed away by Parks wrecker.

Trooper S. A. Wollard investigated the accident. Wollard issued Wineburger a Highway Patrol summons for careless and imprudent driving.

Guard Aircraft Crashes; Crew Escapes Injury
WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Two members of the Mississippi National Guard escaped injury Thursday when their single-engine plane crash landed on a farm 14 miles south of Warrensburg.

The pilot was identified as Capt. James H. Burns, 32, of Jackson, Miss. Also aboard was Maj. Leonard Tingle, 35, also of Jackson.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the plane was on a training flight from Jackson to Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. The craft had gassed up at Springfield, Mo., shortly before it crashed.

The pilot said he decided to crash land the plane when he thought he would lose his propeller. The plane was demolished.

Death Penalty Is Revived By Iowans
DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa House rejected Thursday a bill to revive the death penalty, but only for slaying a law enforcement officer doing his duty.

The vote was 66 to 54.

The 1965 legislature abolished capital punishment. The bill to revive it would change the method of execution from hanging to electrocution.

Rep. John Duffy, D-Dubuque, argued against the bill:

"It would throw modern penology to the winds. You cannot rehabilitate a dead man."

Rep. Maurice van Nostrand, R-Avoca, argued:

"There is no proven case where a person executed for murder ever perpetrated another killing. In this regard, the death penalty is a deterrent."

Wallace Says He Is No Racist

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama says he's a defender of states' rights, not a racist.

"I have never in my public life made a speech reflecting on the rights of people because of their race, creed, color or religion," he told an audience of Pittsburgh business and professional men Thursday night.

Wallace said that as governor of Alabama he tried to block encroachment by the federal government.

"We don't like it because the federal courts have stepped into every phase of government that should be left to the respective states," he said. "That's all we're talking about — the right of home rule or territorial integrity."

The audience of 1,000 applauded throughout his speech. Some occasionally stood to cheer.

A line of seven or eight men was at the side of the speakers' table throughout the meal earlier. The men had left their $15-a-plate dinners to shake hands with Wallace. The former governor's food, touched only slightly, grew cold as he greeted them.

The reception at Pittsburgh, his second stop on a Northern speaking tour, was in marked contrast to his greeting at Syracuse University Wednesday. That audience, composed largely of college students, interrupted him with jeers and boos.

There were demonstrators in Pittsburgh, too.

An estimated 1,500 persons, mostly Negroes, marched three abreast around the hotel where Wallace appeared, chanting "Go home Wallace, Wallace go home."

Wallace arrived before the demonstrators appeared and stayed at the hotel overnight. He didn't see them.

He leaves today for Cleveland, Ohio, for another speech in a four-city tour interpreted as a trial run for a possible presidential candidacy in 1968, as he tried in 1964.

But Wallace said again in Pittsburgh that he will not decide whether to become a candidate until the end of the year.

He told a news conference he may seek the presidency "if the two major parties do not give the people a choice."

"It looks now," he said, "as if neither major party will give the people that choice."

Five mint employees have been charged with stealing coins and coin blanks from the mint, which installed new security devices last month.

Lonely Days Ahead For Sen. Dodd

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are lonely days ahead for white-haired Sen. Thomas J. Dodd who — during nine years in the Senate — developed a reputation as a loner.

Now, alone, he is preparing his defense.

The Connecticut Democrat stands accused before his 99 Senate colleagues of misusing political contributions, of financial misconduct warranting their censure.

No senator has spoken in his behalf.

"My colleagues have been very kind and friendly and considerate, but how can I say what they will do?" Dodd said Thursday after the Senate Ethics Committee recommended his censure.

Dodd said he won't try to persuade individual colleagues to give him their votes.

"I will make my statement on the floor of the Senate and that's all I will do," he said.

Dodd describes his life as dominated by politics and burdened by debt. "My life for 11 years has been so political that it has been almost nothing else," he told the Ethics Committee.

Eleven years ago, Dodd made his first bid for election to the Senate. He lost. But two years later, he won a Senate seat and came to Washington describing himself as "a moderate man."

In foreign affairs, and particularly in matters dealing with communism, Dodd has taken a hard line, allying himself with Senate conservatives. But on domestic affairs, especially such as civil rights, he has generally sided with the liberals.

He is vice chairman of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, the counterpart of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. As chairman of the Senate subcommittee to investigate juvenile delinquency, he campaigned for gun control legislation. He also is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, but seldom attends its sessions.

Censure would not strip Dodd of those posts, nor would it diminish his seniority.

What would it mean? Dodd maintains only his Senate colleagues can answer that.

Dodd will be 60 in two weeks. He stands 5 feet 7 inches, weighs about 170 pounds. A lawyer and one-time FBI agent, he wears dark suits; a heavy gold watch chain invariably dangles from his lapel.

He took part in the prosecution of Nazi war criminals at Nuremberg, Germany, and received a presidential citation for his work. Elected to the House in 1952, he served there four years.

Luck Works For Montreal

TORONTO (AP) — Montreal's Canadiens had the Thursday hex and a little bit of luck working for them in the fourth game of their Stanley Cup best-of-seven final series against Toronto.

Naturally, they won 6-2 and evened the series at two games apiece. The fifth game will be played at Montreal Saturday.

Jean Beliveau and Ralph Backstrom scored two goals apiece for the Canadiens, who started to get that good feeling before the game.

That was when word reached their dressing room that Johnny Bower, the Leafs' 42-year-old goalie, had pulled a thigh muscle in his left leg during the warmup and would not start.

"We heard in the dressing room that Bower had been injured," said Toe Blake, the Canadiens' coach. "He had been murdered to us in the last two games."

So, instead of Bower, the Canadiens faced Terry Sawchuk, who had starred in Toronto's semifinal series victory over Chicago. But never on Thursday.

The Leafs have dropped four games in playoffs — two against Chicago and two against Montreal — all of them on Thursday and all of them with Sawchuk in the nets.

The trend continued with Backstrom and Beliveau giving Montreal a 2-0 lead in the first period. Then, after Mike Walton hit for Toronto at 2:09 of the second period, Henri Richard retaliated just 17 seconds later for a 3-1 lead.

Tim Horton narrowed it to 3-2 before Backstrom and Beliveau hit again. Jim Roberts scored Montreal's final goal with less than five minutes left in the game.

Beliveau said, "This game should change the whole story of the series."

Biggest Show Of All Is Coming Up For Champion

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — To Cassius Clay — Muhammad Ali, if you prefer — all the world's a stage and the biggest show of all comes up Friday when he confronts Uncle Sam and the military draft.

Will the unpredictable heavyweight boxing champion pull a dramatic switch or will he go through with his avowed plan to refuse the oath and risk a possible five-year imprisonment?

"Who knows?" says a very close friend. "This man has been known to change his mind 15 times in the space of a block. He is strictly a ham. Anything can happen."

Cassius Marcellus Clay Jr., descendant of a runaway Kentucky slave, rode to the top of the boxing world with three great talents — a sharp mind, quick wit and perhaps the fastest flits the game has known.

He is a magnificent athlete; 6 feet 3, 210 pounds with broad, tapering shoulders, wasp waist and legs of a gladiator.

In his march to boxing's most valued crown, he delighted the public at first with his brashness, his homespun philosophy and his wild antics.

He predicted the rounds in he would knock out his opponents and made good his boasts. He spouted poems that didn't scan but often rhymed.

"You can believe this jive, 'I'll win in five.' But it's hard to be funny all the time.

Cassius' humor became worn. His odds grew stale. His jokes fell flat.

As he continued his sensational string of victories — 29 without a defeat, 23 by knockouts — his voice grew louder and his boasts more blatant.

What had been viewed once as sharp wit now is interpreted as arrogance and bombast.

The champion was booed when he entered the ring and when he left it holding his right hand high in victory. The fans wanted to see him licked.

This confused Clay. "I have never been in jail, I have never done anything wrong, I live a clean life," he said. "Why are they against me?"

They accused him of being sadistic. They said he chopped up former champion Floyd Patterson like a meat cleaver for 12 rounds when he could have made it quick and merciful.

"What do they want me to do?" Cassius said. "I knock out that big ugly bear Sonny Liston and they say it's a fake. If I let a fighter like Patterson go 12 rounds with me, they say I am cruel. I can't win."

Two days after winning the heavyweight crown Feb. 26, 1964, from Liston, Clay announced he was a member of the Black Muslims, a religious cult dedicated to Negro nationalism, and he adopted the name Muhammad Ali.

He was no longer the ebullient kid from Louisville, Ky., with the big mouth. He termed himself a Muslim minister, made a voyage to Mecca and suddenly became interested in both national and international affairs.

He threatened not to go into the military service when drafted.

"Why should they ask me, another so-called Negro, to put on a uniform and go 10,000 miles from home and drop bombs and bullets on brown people in Vietnam while so-called Negro people in Louisville are treated like dogs and denied human rights?" he said.

Clay remains an enigma even to his closest friends.

His ancestors worked as slaves on the plantation of Cassius Marcellus Clay, who was Lincoln's minister to Russia. The family adopted the name, which Cassius now spurns as "my slave name."

He was a quiet youth, a good all-around athlete who began boxing when he was 12. He won more than 180 fights as an amateur and was Olympic champion.

It wasn't until he started winning pro fights that Cassius started his "I am the greatest" act.

He has nobody to write his lines. The gags are his own. "A wise man can act like a fool, but a fool can't act like a wise man," he once said in describing himself.

Clay had the ingredients to become a national sports hero — good looks, charm and unquestioned fighting ability — but he chose the controversial role of the Black Muslim.

Woman Is Killed In Car-Truck Accident

FARMINGTON, Mo. (AP) — A Flat River, Mo., woman was killed and her 3-year-old son critically injured Thursday night in a car-truck accident on U. S. 67 near Farmington.

The Highway Patrol identified the victim as Irama Jean Brewer, 27. Critically injured and hospitalized here was her son, Gerald Lynn Brewer.

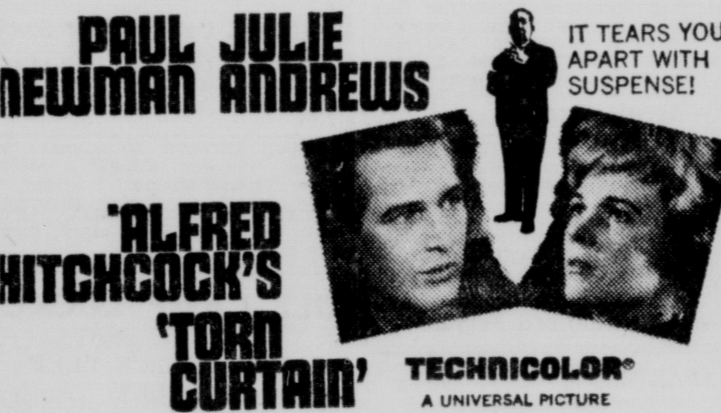

Police said the Brewer auto struck the rear of a tractor-trailer unit as it was attempting to make a right turn.

goal came when he shot from beside and slightly behind Sawchuk, hoping the puck would glance off a Toronto player and into the net.

"Sure enough," Beliveau said, "It hit Sawchuk on the back of the leg and went in."

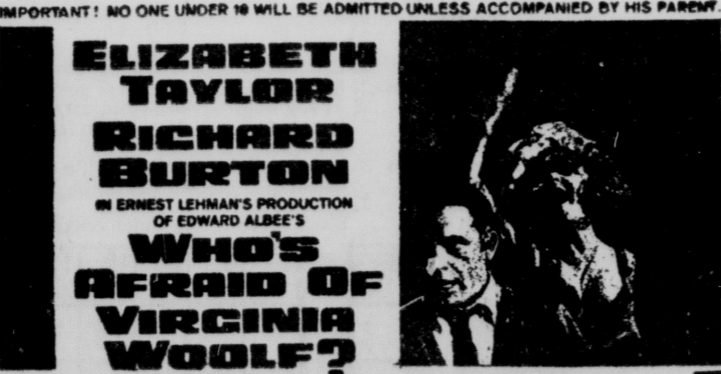

Backstrom's second goal struck the inside of the Toronto goal post and went in.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I decided a few weeks ago that if I received one more ridiculous thank-you note I would write to you. Today is the day. It arrived in this morning's mail. Here it is: "I am just a teeny weeny baby so of course I can't write yet but my mommie is writing for me. She says the little dress you sent is the prettiest one in my wardrobe. I think it is, too. I just love pink. I hope you will come and see how nice I look in my pretty pink dress. But please call before you come because I sleep quite a lot and I want to be up from my nap when you come to see me. Love, Linda Sue."

Isn't that nauseating? Why do mothers think they have to be so cute? Would you call this bad taste, stupidity or what? Please comment. — HASTEN JASON BRING THE BASIN.

Dear Jason: Personally, I don't care for cutesy, precious thank-you notes but at least you received an expression of appreciation. Every week I get dozens of letters from people who wonder why their wedding gifts, graduation gifts, baby gifts, Christmas, Easter and birthday gifts are not even acknowledged.

Dear Ann Landers: Frequently I read in your column complaints from pseudomale housewives who think housework is for sissies.

I boil when I think of the bums whose wives hold down jobs, run homes and raise families, while they put in an eight-hour day and then hide behind the newspaper or TV.

I am proud to say I share the household duties with my wife and do everything I can to help, including ironing. I have not developed any mammary glands or other feminine characteristics. Nobody has ever called me a pantywaist, at least not to my face.

Fathers should not worry about their sons being sissies if they do housework. They should be concerned with raising young men who can help their wives without feeling that their masculinity is being threatened. — CHAMPAIGN, ILL.

Dear Champ: Every working wife in the U.S.A. will love you for your stand. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I almost croaked when I read the letter from the 13-year-old girl who said she had been in love three times. She signed herself: "This Time It's Real."

I am 15 and I know the difference between a crush and infatuation. Any girl who is in love with her English teacher one week and the paper boy the next week has got to be wingy. Then she talks about feeling dizzy and not being able to eat. Maybe the poor kid has the flu. I hope the girl clipped out that silly column and that she will read it again when she is 18. She'll have a good laugh. Sign me—I CAN WAIT.

Dear ICW: You have a smart head on those 15-year-old shoulders. Young kids who think they are in love, then try to live the past as they see it portrayed in the movies, end up sad and sorry. Congratulations on your good sense.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Wants Ouster Of Some Restrictions

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Director of the Peninsula and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., says there are too many governmental restrictions on international travel and some should be removed.

Sir Colin Anderson of London told a recent travel conference. "I can think of no argument which would convince me that we need an eleventh commandment, one which says 'thou shalt not travel.' And if we ever must have one, I should prefer that it came from a somewhat higher source than a governmental office."

Old Bill Is Killed

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — The Vermont legislature recently killed a bill to outlaw shooting of panthers. The last panther reported shot in the state was in 1883.

Doctrines Admittedly Imperfect

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever since the apostle Paul declared that "now we see through a glass darkly," Christianity has recognized that its defined doctrines were imperfect reflections of what basically remains mystery.

Yet efforts to express and illuminate its truths have continued through the centuries, in councils, creeds and articles of faith. Today, many church thinkers are wrestling anew with the problem — to state beliefs better.

Amid the reappraisals, and the sometimes disturbed reactions to them, a controversial Canadian priest has urged that the churches quit prescribing specific interpretations.

"The church should stop presuming to be the 'Answer Man,'" said the Rev. Ernest Harrison, an Anglican — Church of England — clergyman of Toronto. "Its proper function is to be a community of searchers, welcoming all serious viewpoints."

The Rev. Mr. Harrison, a graying, bespectacled man of 50, whose ideas have resulted in his being barred from ministerial functions in the Toronto diocese, said Christianity's "big challenge now is to live with uncertainty."

He added: "To live with uncertainty is a sign of maturity."

Here in connection with the issuance of his new book, "A Church Without God," published by Lippincott, he said in an interview that the church "can no longer absolutize about doctrines."

"It can't say that one view is right and another wrong, that there is only one true view," he said. "Life has shown us that nobody has the final answers for all time, that we learn from experience and each other."

"Instead of force-feeding answers, the church ought to offer a choice. It should open its gates and recognize the legitimacy of many more rooms of differing understanding."

In his book, he discounts many standard doctrinal formulations, including Christ's divinity.

"Almost every point raised in the creeds is doubted by vast numbers of Christians," he maintains. "Some are strongly denied. Some, like the Virgin birth, are received in lukewarm fashion. Yet they are still announced as doctrines of the church."

"If the church were seriously accepted as the 'people of God,' then all their feelings, reactions and thoughts would be represented in its teachings. But this has not happened. Consequently," he adds, "many Christians are trapped."

"For, in spite of the loud cries of heresy, they do not feel like heretics. They feel like Christians. They feel that they are as much entitled to membership in their church as those who condemn them."

Such feelings are shared by the Rev. Mr. Harrison, who himself was forced to resign his post as general secretary of his church's powerful board of religious education last fall after 10 fellow theologians called him a heretic.

He questions such classical Christian teachings as the resurrection, life after death and maintains "there is no God" in the traditional sense of a "grand being" apart from men, judging, punishing and helping them.

"God is not something other than mankind," he said.

That 'Bleak' Feeling From Wife-Type Music

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that husbands get tired of hearing:

"Remember Gerald, the fellow who wanted me to elope with him in college? I just heard he's been elected board chairman of the biggest bank in my home town."

"How is it that you can remember the score of every golf game you ever played, but can never remember my birthday?"

"You haven't been listening to a thing I said, have you? You have? All right, tell me — what did I say?"

"Daddy, can I have $5. The girls in our class are making up a party Saturday to go to an amusement park."

"All I can say is that if we can't afford a cleaning woman every once in a while, you're the one who is going to have to start waxing the kitchen floor and mopping the bathroom."

"Maybe if you'd just let me tint the gray in your hair it might help you get ahead at the office faster. I hear that most bosses now want their employees to look as young as possible."

"Don't bother to take off your shoes. Have you forgotten we're going to the PTA meeting? They have a real interesting speaker I'm dying to hear. He's going to talk on, 'Child Education among the early Aztecs, and It's Implications in a Permissive Society.'"

"If I can get by on a tuna fish salad sandwich for lunch, why do you have to have two martinis, beef stew and an expensive dessert?"

"Don't tell me it's your wife you've been listening to on the phone for the last half hour, Jim? You must be really henpecked."

"Remember Ronald, the boy I told you about who used to carry my books home from high school? Well, I just heard he's been made the executive vice president of a big advertising firm."

"Agnes and Jack Jones are celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary next week. He's surprising her with a trip to Bermuda. Where are you planning to take me on our 25th anniversary — to the movies?"

"Hi Pop. Can you give me $10? We're having a school dance, and I have to take a girl, and — well, you know how it is. The gang always goes somewhere to eat afterward."

"Don't you have any backbone at all? Tell him that if he won't pay you any more, you'll simply have to take another job. That big bully may scare you, but he doesn't frighten me one whit."

"All we have for dinner tonight is leftovers. If you don't want them, you can take me out to a restaurant. It shouldn't kill you to do that, should it?"

"I was dusting off the bookshelf this afternoon, and came across our wedding album. You know, Jim, you really weren't half-bad looking — then."

"Before you start telling me your troubles, let me tell you mine — the cat's had kittens again."

"Remember Charlie, the little boy who was so wild about me in kindergarten? I just heard he's running for governor next year. 'I wonder what it would feel like to be the first lady in a state mansion?'"

'Twiggy' Phenomenon Analyzed

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — (AP) — The Twiggy phenomenon is one of those periodic eruptions of carefully manufactured teen-age enthusiasm with roots in the old Frank Sinatra and Beatles hysteria.

As always, it is a mystery wrapped in enigma and you can get a good argument started on the subject any time. Why is a 17-year-old Cockney girl with a s'ring-bean-shaped 91-pound frame and a cute, freckle-covered face dominated by heavily made-up eyes currently the center of passionate attention by press and broadcasting, a cover girl on a magazine that usually honors statesman and making

Might Quit Smoking For Political Reason

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Mayor Al C. Ballard may give up smoking — for political reasons.

A new councilman, William Katona, takes his seat beside Ballard May 8. He's allergic to tobacco smoke.

"I won't quit smoking for my wife," Ballard said Thursday. "Why should I quit for a councilman?"

He added, "Well, I might, if it means a vote."

more money this year than the prime minister of Great Britain?

Presumably the nation's teenagers get Twiggy's message. And Thursday night ABC, the network that is particularly interested in catering to the tastes of the under-35 audience, presented the first of a series of three close-ups of the girl born

Leslie Hornby. This one focused on her New York experiences.

We saw a lot of Twiggy.

But the mystery of Twiggy's emergence as a teen-age idol remained intact, at least to an older viewer in search of clues.

The half-hour program, initial tentative plunge into television by a fashion photographer named Bert Stern, was no help.

The program was the occasion for the premiere of an incredible ballad, "I'll Remember You, Twiggy," furthering the impression that Twiggy, the publicity, the excitement and even the program are all part of a gigantic, and profitable put-on.

WHAT ABOUT INFANT BAPTISM? Only believers are subjects for Baptism. (Mark 16:16). There is no account in the Bible of infants ever being baptized. The very nature of Baptism makes it impossible for it to apply to infants. (1st Peter 3:21—Answer of a good conscience toward God). An infant has no conscience in the transaction. Infant baptism and sprinkling was not introduced until over 100 years after the death of the last Apostle. Let's worship as the Bible Teaches because we know it is correct.

FINDING THE WAY

High Price of Maturity

By RALPH W. LOWE, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The demands for maturity are increased every day. International relationships, control of the power we have developed and, of greatest importance, our own involvement in human relations, demand judgment and responsibility. The immature are the victims of themselves, creating the disasters which affect everyone.

A recent highway tragedy in our area was the result of this immaturity of judgment. A young woman was angry and frustrated. Instead of confronting her situation in a mature way, seeing it in perspective and handling the issues at stake, she drove her car at an irrational speed, lost control, hurtled across a median strip. As a result, a driver of a car coming in the opposite direction is dead. With hot lines in Washington and steering wheels in our own hands, the demands for maturity are accelerated.

It's one thing to plead for maturity and another thing to develop it. Reuel Howe, the creative writer and counselor, has developed nine principles toward the development of maturity. To him a mature person is one who:

Develops his life by long-term purposes rather than by immediate desires.

Accepts things and people as they are rather than pretending they are the way he wants them to be.

Accepts the authority of others without the rebellion or without the self-abdication that we call "folding up."

Accepts himself as an authority without either a sense of bravado or a sense of guilt.

Defends himself both from his own unacceptable impulses and from attacks from the outside.

Works without being a slave and plays without feeling that he ought to be working.

Loves others so satisfyingly that he becomes less dependent upon being loved.

Accepts his own and the opposite sex and the relation between the two in ways that are appropriately fulfilling.

Accepts his significant place and role in the larger scheme of things.

If we are to develop men and women who adventure in space, travel our highways and deal in the intricate and bold developments required of nations, we will need leadership. Leadership grows from the seedbed of maturity.

It isn't only in the counsels of the mighty that these qualities are demanded; they are the requisites of our family discussions and the relationships between parents and children. We can be helpless and demanding. We can be erratic and unpredictable. Or we can become persons who can adventure with that freedom that grows out of maturity.

CLEVELAND, O. — Combo shows how a squirrel outwitted a Cleveland resident. Squirrel (left), studies a stovepipe that was installed to prevent him from gobbling up seed in bird feeder. The squirrel quickly solved the problem by climbing up a tree, leaping onto garage roof (top right), skids down the sloping roof and soars into space (middle), landing right on the bird feeder roof (bottom). All that exercise gives the squirrel an even better appetite for the bird food. The man has given up and says the birds will just have to switch to peanuts. (UPI)

Familiar Sights Are Re-Enacted

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP) — "Yes, they look just like those two killers — especially the dark one."

That comment can be heard around the Finney County courthouse these days as the trial of Richard Eugene Hickock and Perry Edward Smith is being replayed for the filming of "In Cold Blood."

Hickock, 33, and Smith, 36, were hanged in Kansas State Penitentiary after being convicted of murdering the four members of the Clutter family in nearby Holcomb. The two killers are now being played by Hollywood actors Robert Blake and Scott Wilson, who face the prospect of worldwide fame after lives of obscurity.

Indeed the dark one — Robert Blake, 33 — does bear a haunting resemblance to the moody, murderous Perry Smith. Blake is dark, strongly built, with short legs.

Wilson, 25, is handsomer than the other killer, Hickock. He is taller, too, as has been noted by Truman Capote, who spent much time with the condemned men in research for his book, "In Cold Blood."

Both actors seem moody and almost overwhelmed by the sudden burst of publicity concerning their roles. They had grown accustomed to years of agonizing waiting as undiscovered Hollywood actors.

"Me, I hung around town five-six years until this happened," said Wilson, a slender, thin-faced young man. "I had to take any job I could find — grocery box boy, junior draftsman, parking lot attendant, bus boy, gas station man, mail clerk, you name it. Guys like me who want to be actors can't take a regular job because you can't leave it when an acting job comes along."

Wilson, an Atlanta, Ga., bachelor who hitchhiked to Hollywood to become an actor, stuck it out with little encouragement. His role in a forthcoming Sidney Poitier film brought him to the attention of Richard Brooks, maker of "In Cold Blood." He was interviewed, tested and handed the role.

Robert Blake, the dark one, is a cooler cat. Born in Nutley, N.J., he drifted through the United States and in and out of the Army, landing in Hollywood in 1958. He has had more experience than Wilson, especially during the brave, abortive repertory season on TV of the Richard Boone Show. Blake appeared in 26 of the 30 dramas.

"It's only in the past three or four years that my wife and I decided I was doing well enough so we could start a family," said Blake, now the father of two.

Still, he is unsure of his new position and is likely to answer in an erratic and combative way questions thrown at him by correspondents who have been pouring in to observe the location.

If you have been following the newspapers of late, you probably noticed that the industry has come up with a TV auto mechanic which tells in a wink what is wrong with your engine.

This electronic grease-monkey throws wavy patterns of light onto the face of a TV-type screen. Variations from normal operating patterns identify mechanical troubles such as defective coils and points and shorted plugs. This gimmick, by the way, is simply connected to the car's ignition system by two clip-on leads. It can be powered by your own auto battery, so that the car may be road tested and the screen watched for motor "bugs". All we need now is for some enterprising party to figure a way to watch Disneyland at the same time and we'll have everything!

NOT SO BAD, REALLY—The gentleman on the right seems to be despondently standing by watching a huge tongue of flame devour what used to be a small house between Ohio and Lamine on 14th yesterday. Actually, the fire was purposely set after the house was torn down. City firemen permitted the burning. They made an exception in this case because there was nothing near the fire that could have been damaged by it. Firemen nevertheless stood by until the flames burned themselves down. Numerous phone calls were received about a huge column of smoke in the area, but it was really nothing at all. (Democrat-Capitol photo)

More Power Struggle

Second Revolt By Army Breaks Out

TOKYO (AP) — A second army revolt against Mao Tse-tung has broken out in Red China's northwest, indicating an intensification of his power struggle, Peking wall posters reported Thursday.

This time the scene was mountainous Tsinghai Province, where a deputy military commander staged a coup d'etat against his chief and killed or wounded more than 200 Maoists, the posters said.

Only Wednesday, posters had reported army units killed or wounded several hundred Maoists April 18 in Kansu Province, next door to the north of Tsinghai. Both provinces border on Sinkiang in the far northwest where an army revolt was reported early this year.

Wall posters put up by Red Guards and other Maoists often tend to exaggerate and some have proved false. There was no way of evaluating the reports of trouble in the northwest.

Japanese correspondents in Peking said the posters reported the mutinous deputy commander was Chao Yung-fu. He was said to have overthrown Gen. Liu Hsien-chuan, Tsinghai's military commander.

Presumably, Liu was overthrown in Sining, the capital, but the dispatches did not say so. All provincial military headquarters are in the capitals.

The posters said the Tsinghai uprising was discussed at an emergency meeting of the party Central Committee, the government, the purge committee and the party's Military Affairs Commission.

It was decided to set up a military control commission in Tsinghai to restore the Maoists. Whether troops would be sent into the province was not indicated. However, Peking sent troops into Sinkiang Province when soldiers there rebelled against Mao.

Another Peking wall poster said Foreign Minister Chen Yi and two other famous marshals, Yeh Chien Ying and Hsu Hsiang-chien, had been removed from the party's Military Affairs Commission, China's highest military organization. As a marshal, Chen Yi won fame in China's civil war as the conqueror of Shanghai.

Mao, as party chairman, heads the military commission, but it is actually run by Defense Minister Lin Piao, his heir apparent.

Chen Yi has been under mounting attack from teen-age Red Guards, who support Mao in his power struggle with President Liu Shao-chi, but the powerful purge chief, Chen Po-ta, has come to his defense. At the same time, however, Chen Po-ta said Chen Yi committed errors.

The newspaper Ashai's Peking correspondent said another wall poster reported Premier Chou En-lai was directing the foreign ministry but Chen maintains his post.

Some Proposals Defeated

Plan For Annual Sessions Okayed

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A plan for annual sessions of the Missouri Legislature won first round approval by the House of Representatives Thursday, but only after defeat of proposals to increase legislative allowances.

Sponsors of the proposed constitutional change said they were afraid voters would reject it if they thought legislators would be collecting more for attending legislative sessions and looking after the interest of their constituents.

Rep. Donald J. Gralike, D-Le-may, offered an amendment that would increase the daily expense allowance during sessions from the present $10 to $25. He said a legislator can't live in the capital city on $10 a day.

But others said the voters would think the lawmakers were trying to put over a fast one and would vote against the constitutional change — thereby defeating the primary purpose of allowing annual sessions.

Rep. Robert E. Young, R-Carthage, asked "aren't you making treasury raiders out of the entire membership?"

The Gralike amendment was defeated 9-134, but the plan still would allow the legislature to increase the expense allowance later simply by passing a law.

The minority leader, Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton, suggested a change to allow each

Water May Be Sold

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. Norman H. Anderson held Thursday a third-class city operating a water system may sell water to customers outside the city but cannot provide the means of transporting it.

The opinion was provided for Rep. Ronald M. Belt, R-Macon. The Missouri Public Service Commission could not regulate the transaction because its controls do not cover municipal utilities, the opinion said.

A third-class city cannot sell natural gas outside the city limits, the opinion said, because there is no specific legislative authority for that.

Low Rent Housing Meet Set

Labor, business, the clergy, Mayor Ralph Walker, and city council, are invited to attend a meeting regarding low rent housing, according to Jim Reed, president of the Sedalia Downtown Association.

The meeting will be held Tuesday, May 2, 7:30 p.m. in the Teamster Building, 1806 West Broadway.

Randolph Halsey, Jefferson City, an expert in this field, will attend.

Thursday, May 4, is the regular meeting of the downtown merchants. The meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. at the Coffee Pot cafe.

The Rev. Don Frank and Ed Ferrari, chairman of the Industrial and merchants committee, will bring a program titled "Community Cooperation."

King Told After Action Was Going

ATHENS (AP) — One of the triumvirate of officers who led last week's army coup said Thursday King Constantine was informed only after the takeover was under way.

Col. George Papadopoulos, minister of the new military government's premier, said the 26-year-old king was informed "as soon as possible after the action took place" in the early hours of last Friday.

Papadopoulos gave the sequence of events at the first news conference by any of the three men who planned and led the virtually bloodless coup. The others are Brig. Stylianos Patakios and Col. Nicholas Makarezos, minister of interior and minister of coordination, respectively.

In response to a question, Papadopoulos said 25 politicians and 5,000 "Communists" rounded up in the first hours of the army's action are still in detention. He said the politicians, including antimonarchist leader Andreas Papandreu, were being held in hotels outside Athens. The 5,000 others, he added, have been taken out of Athens.

Papadopoulos disclosed that George Papandreu, father of Andreas and former premier, was in an Athens military hospital.

It was to forestall the Papandreu and their Center Union party, the largest in Parliament, in May 28 parliamentary elections that the army took over.

Earlier in the day, Papandreu's secretary said the elder Papandreu, 79, was in good health and receiving "excellent care."

Until now, the precise whereabouts of both Papandreu had been kept secret.

The subject of the king's role in the coup came up when a reporter asked: "was the king informed in advance? If not, why not?"

Papadopoulos replied: "The king was informed as soon as possible after the action took place. The state of relations — between officers and the king — is now as you saw it in the picture of the king and his cabinet."

He was referring to a picture taken Wednesday which dispelled many of the doubts in political circles here that the king supported the army's action.

Senate Ethics Committee Recommends Dodd Censure

Defiant Democrat Says He Will Fight Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee unanimously recommended Thursday the censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, accusing him of financial misconduct which "tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute."

Defiant and insisting he is innocent, the Connecticut Democrat said he will fight the charges, stay at his post in the Senate — and run for reelection in 1970.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., pronounced in the Senate the judgement of the six-member committee which he heads. Dodd listened in silence. After 14 months of investigation, that process took six minutes.

Now the white-haired Dodd's fate is in the hands of the Senate itself, the Internal Revenue Service and the Justice Department.

The bipartisan committee — three Democrats and three Republicans — based its recommendation on these two key findings:

1. That the Connecticut senator used at least $116,083 in politically raised campaign and testimonial funds "for his personal purposes."

2. That Dodd billed both the Senate and private organizations for seven trips he made between 1961 and 1965.

It criticized, without censuring, his relationship with Julius Klein, an agent for West German business interests.

And it said the Justice Department and the Internal Revenue Service should consider "possible violations of law" in Dodd's financial maneuvers.

At the heart of the 27-page report was the resolution of censure Stennis presented to the Senate. It declares:

"Resolved, that it is the judgment of the Senate that the senator from Connecticut, Thomas J. Dodd, for having engaged in a course of conduct over a period of five years from 1961 to 1965 of exercising the influence and power of his office as a United States senator, as shown by the conclusions in the investigation by the Select Committee on Standards and Conduct.

LBJ Enters Education Bill Fight

GOP Is Accused Of Reckless Effort To Rewrite Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson joined the fight Thursday to save his landmark federal aid program for elementary and secondary schools, accusing Republican critics of a "reckless effort to rewrite our laws for partisan political advantage."

House Democratic leaders, meanwhile, put off again until at least the week after next consideration of the measure. They appear to be uncertain about the strength of a GOP drive to restructure the legislation to transfer major control to the states.

And angry floor debate broke out with Democrats accusing the Republicans of trying to resurrect the church-state issue which helped block federal school aid until 1965. Republicans denied the accusation.

At stake is the $6.7-billion, two-year extension of the education program, in what is becoming increasingly a partisan fight.

Republicans want state educational officials to have control over apportioning the school aid to local districts, which is now done by the federal office of education. Democrats argue this would divert aid from the needy school district which are the primary beneficiaries of money under the Johnson program.

"I hope members of Congress will stop, look and listen before they march down this blind alley," Johnson said in a speech at the dedication of a vocational education center in the Washington suburb of Camp Springs, Md.

The gains we have so far are only the beginning," he added. "We must build on them. But we must not lose all we have gained by this reckless effort to rewrite our laws for partisan political advantage."

Taking aim at Republicans repeated revisions of their plan, Johnson said:

"No one can tell for sure how they plan to change the law. Each day they trot out a new

Maj. Gen. John C. McLaughlin

John McLaughlin, Noted Sedalia Businessman, Dies

Maj. General John Charles "Jack" McLaughlin, III, (Ret), well-known Sedalia businessman and president of McLaughlin Bros. Furniture Co., died at noon Thursday at the Boone County Hospital, Columbia, while undergoing emergency surgery. He became suddenly ill shortly before 7 a. m. with a heart ailment at his home, 1509 West Fourth, and was rushed to Columbia in an ambulance, accompanied by Mrs. McLaughlin and his brother, Philip McLaughlin.

Gen. McLaughlin was born in Sedalia, June 21, 1903, son of the late John C. McLaughlin Sr. and Alice Miner. He attended Broadway School and was graduated from the Staunton Military Academy in 1921. He attended the University of Missouri from 1921 to 1924, returning to Sedalia before graduation, following the death of his father.

His education at Staunton Military Academy instilled in him a deep interest in military affairs and he became a dedicated military man which took him on a military career through the Missouri National Guard from October, 1924 until his retirement on June 29, 1960. He was commissioned a first lieutenant in the old 128th Field Artillery Regiment, Missouri National Guard Regiment. In October, 1925, he was promoted to captain and served with his unit throughout the pre-World War II years.

In 1938 he was appointed Regimental S-3 in charge of operations and entered federal service in November, 1940. He was promoted to major in June, 1941 and served as Executive Officer, 128th Field Artillery Regiment, until June, 1942, when he was promoted to Lt. Colonel and transferred to the 17th Field Artillery as battalion commander. In August, 1942, he was ordered overseas as Regimental Executive Officer, of the 17th Field Artillery, going first to England. He then participated in the invasion and campaigns of North Africa, Sicily and Italy, moving into the campaigns of Southern France, up through the Rhineland, Germany and Central Europe. In the spring of 1944 he became Commanding Officer of the 17th Field Artillery Group, and was subsequently promoted to colonel.

Following his separation from federal service in March, 1946, he remained unassigned in the Organized Reserve Corps until he was named Commanding General of the 35th Infantry Division, which at the time was comprised of units from Kansas and Missouri National Guard in October, 1946. He was federally recognized as major general in April, 1947.

The Boys Who Made Good

After you have spent months, sometimes several years trying to pound sense into a youngster's cranium, then finally give up the job in disgust—don't lose hope!

For 15 years, while employed in another state, I kept personal contact with newspaper carrier boys. There were always two or three rebels in the lot, always older boys leaving, younger ones coming on. It was a fascinating experience trying to teach them to be faithful in the discharge of their duties and to become honest, upright citizens.

With the passing of time these youngsters became men. It is surprising how many of them turned out to take their rightful place in careers our country provided. One became a successful marine engineer, one an army captain, another an army aviator, another an athletic director, school teachers, optometrists, medical doctors, dentists, newspaper managers

Among them were hard-headed kids who gave their elders a bad time. One especially I thought would never amount to anything in the business world. He turned out to be a store manager. He was called by the army as a private and rose to a lieutenant and became a public speaker. Another shy little fellow who was teased by the other boys, was always faithful to his paper-carrying duties. When old enough he enlisted in the navy and during the war was lost at sea.

Those who manage boys in their teens should have a care. You may think sometimes they are candidates for a reform school, but watch out. A little patience and sincere advice may turn them into a president of the United States, an army general, a successful business executive or professional man.

ST. JOHN'S N.B. TELEGRAPH: Computer Court.—Can a computer deliver more equitable sentences than a flesh-and-blood magistrate?

The question may soon be answered in Britain where the Lord Chancellor has appointed a committee to study a proposal that computers replace magistrates in the lower courts.

Sentences for all types of crime would be stored in a central computer. Fresh information would be fed in, giving the offender's previous record, his financial circumstances and other information. Sentence would be based on the computer's recommendations.

The fact that a machine has been devised with the capability of measuring human transgressions is terrifying, in a sense.

Humphrey Passes His Biggest Test

DREW PEARSON
and JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — On his recent trip to Europe Vice President Humphrey, being the No. 2 man in government, adopted the slogan of a well known car rental company. He tried harder.

His biggest test was his dramatic confrontation with "Le Grand Charles," the difficult and divisive Charles De Gaulle. It was the first top-level visit an American official has had with the French President in two years of strained relations.

Humphrey's aides tried to prepare him for the encounter by writing a formal little speech, which he was supposed to deliver in toasting De Gaulle.

"Fifty years ago," declared the proposed toast, "we came to the aid of France when she was threatened, and only a few years later we once more came to the aid of our friends. . . . We are committed to you and to your freedom as we are committed to the freedom of our own people."

Humphrey read the draft once and crumpled it into the waste basket.

"This would be an insult," he snorted. "I want to talk about what France has done for America, not what America has done for France."

So at the banquet, the Vice President ad-libbed about visiting Yorktown and reading the names of French officers carved in the granite on our most historic monuments.

"How can I as an American ever forget the debt that we owe France for our independence!" he declared.

"What binds us is not the wars we have fought together nor the money we have exchanged," he continued, pointing out nonetheless that France gave the United States its first loan in 1777.

"What binds us," he went on, "is our common belief in liberty."

The French slogan, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity," stands together in history with the American slogan, "Liberty and the pursuit of happiness," he said.

He also called off the names of the French scholars, writers and scientists who have inspired America, and paid tribute to "Le Grand" leader who symbolizes "La Grande" nation.

"No disagreement between our countries today can possibly erase these immortal memories," declared Humphrey.

Tears welled in De Gaulle's eyes as the Vice President spoke. Later, the venerable old French leader told U. S. Ambassador Charles "Chip" Bohlen: "Your Vice President is a scholar."

Other European Talks

While the Vice President's visit clearly gave French-American relations a lift, it was not the most important of his talks. The most important were with the German and Italian cabinets, aimed at heading off a revival of the arms race, this time with nuclear weapons.

This is the first time in the twenty-year postwar period of very cordial relations between the United States and Italy that there has been a major disagreement between them, and the disagreement over the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons is considered especially serious because it would lead to a revival of the arms jockeying that finally led to World War II.

This is something the United States has been trying to prevent ever since it went into Western Europe with the Marshall plan and subsequently set up NATO and helped inspire the European Common Market.

The leaders of Italy remained cordial but adamant. Humphrey got the impression that they would be more difficult in the end than West Germany.

He found German leaders most concerned about the provisions in the treaty which would permit representatives from Communist countries to inspect their plants. Humphrey discussed safeguards to answer their worries which satisfied Foreign Minister Willy Brandt and seemed to make an impression on Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

The Vice President got off to a good start with Kiesinger by bringing greetings from Kiesinger's daughter, Mrs. Viola Wentzel, who is studying at Georgetown University in Washington. What really mellowed the Chancellor, however, were stories and pictures of his little granddaughter, Cecilia.

The Chancellor told how he had entered his bedroom to dress for the banquet and had found upon the dresser a "beautiful photograph" of his daughter and granddaughter posing with Humphrey.

"You have discovered my soft spot," said Kiesinger, turning to the Vice President.

French-German Alliance

Humphrey responded by saying his country encouraged the new, friendly relations between Germany and France.

He noted that the Chancellor's daughter lived across the street in Washington from the French Embassy and that the Chancellor's little granddaughter plays on the grounds of the French Embassy.

"And her little German dog," added Humphrey in mock dismay, "plays with a French dog! Who knows what they are saying to one another?"

Humphrey, as previously reported, fell back on his long acquaintanceship with some of the social Democratic leaders of Italy and Germany whom he had known for many years. He is reasonably confident that they will influence their governments, in which they are part of coalitions, to bring about approval of the nonproliferation treaty in the end.

Note — Italian newspapers misrepresented the beating up of the Italian who threw paint at Vice President Humphrey in front of the Rome Opera House. The man was a tough Communist, who after throwing the paint started toward Humphrey. The Secret Service grabbed him and did manhandle him somewhat, though most of the manhandling was done by the Italian police.

Willie Wiggle

Willie Wiggle was a fishing worm
That moved about with a twist and a squirm
'Cause he had no feet at all,
And he had to squirm in order to crawl,
He was built like a snake, long and lean,
The same at both ends and in between,
He had no fur and he had no fuzz,
A shiny, slimy fellow he wuz,
And practically always he was found
Doing his work under the ground,
He liked moist soil and burrowed about
Until it was dark and he came out
To feed and through the grass he'd crawl
Over the flowers and 'long the wall,
Now nothing at all did Willie hurt,
He was of great value to garden dirt,
For he brought up soil to the surface you see,
A very good job on the soil did he,
But a little boy kept watching and wishing
He could catch Willie so he could go fishing
But Willie always knew when the boy was near
And down in the earth did he disappear,
So Willie went his merry way
Above ground at night and under by day,
But Willie got tired of this routine,
There were things by day he had never seen,
So one bright morning Willie said
"It's a lovely day" as he stuck his head
Out of a little hole in the ground
Sniffed the air and looked around
That is, the air he sniffed if
A earthworm has a way to sniff,
He felt the warmth of the morning sun,
Then thought he'd go crawling, 'twould be such fun.
So he wiggled some more and then he squirmed
As out of the hole in the ground he wormed,
'Twas then a terrible thing occurred
Out of a tree flew down a bird,
A charcoal bird with an orange-red breast,
To get back in the hole Willie tried his best,
But the bird grabbed Willie and gave a jerk,
And Willie couldn't get back to his work,
The bird held on to Willie tight,
Poor little Willie put up a good fight,
But the charcoal bird with the orange-red breast
Carried him off to her nest
Where she fed him to her babies waiting there
Giving each baby bird a share,
So that was Willie Wiggle's fate,
But he didn't end up as fishing bait,
Too bad for Willie, but do you know,
He helped those baby robins grow
And the robins grew up and they, too,
Had an important job to do,
At which, like Willie, they worked real hard
Keeping bad insects out of the yard,
But the worms, the birds and good bugs we need
To kill out the very bad bugs that breed
And chew on the plants and cause them to die
To make the soil better—and this is why
That gardens grow lovely, as gardens do,
But sometimes the good get eaten up, too,
Like, Willie, who should have stayed underground
Where he would have been safe and couldn't be found.

Physicist Reports

Steady Increase In Noise Could Even Become Lethal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Noise, like smog, is a slow agent of death. If it continues to increase for the next 30 years as it has for the past 30 it could become lethal."

Vern O. Knudsen spoke quietly, as befits a man who has devoted 40 years to the study of sound.

Knudsen is a physicist and former chancellor of the University of California at Los Angeles. He is concerned about noise as a health hazard, but not gloomy, for this reason:

Although Americans grow ever noisier, they also are devising better ways to muffle sound.

Knudsen says that for 30 years the general level of urban noise has increased about one decibel a year. A decibel is a measure of sound intensity.

Probably the greatest racket some Americans are exposed to is the flight deck of an aircraft carrier when jet planes are being launched. Crewmen are buffeted by 155 to 160 decibels. Researchers have killed mice with 175.

By comparison a screeching subway train, a belching diesel truck or a gunshot generate about 100 decibels. Ninety decibels, for several hours a day, can cause a hearing loss.

Levels of acceptability are considered to be 25-30 in a recording studio, 30-35 in a theater, 35-40 in a church, 40-45 in a small office, 50-55 in a restaurant.

Most Americans don't live on aircraft carriers, and those who do protect their ears. But, says Knudsen, although softer noises may not deafen they do take a severe — and often unnecessary — toll in illness, jangled nerves and loss of sleep, concentration and serenity.

He believes that noises that can't be eliminated should at least be muffled, by spending a little more to soundproof structures.

Knudsen developed the ear protectors worn by noise-buffed American servicemen since World War II. When his royalty expired 10 years ago, eight million pairs had been made.

Why is noise harmful? —First, Knudsen said, it simply blurs or masks wanted sounds.

It interferes with rest and impedes convalescence. Before Knudsen started wearing ear plugs to bed in 1938, he discovered that three of four times he awoke during the night, noise was to blame.

It impairs hearing. One research team found that Scandinavian shipyard workers on the job for 31 years were unable to hear a whisper a yard away.

It hinders concentrated mental effort. How many school classes can continue when a jet plane flies overhead?

It causes stress and nervousness, thus the diseases that spring from tension.

What can be done? Such things as traffic noise can be attacked easily, Knudsen said. But as machinery becomes more sophisticated, as the piston-driven plane gives way to the jet and the jetliner to the supersonic transport, problems get knottier.

Knudsen suggests that the United States copy Sweden and equip traffic policemen with sound level meters to detect noisemakers. It is also possible with current technology to keep outdoor noises outside.

Gaps on the Book Shelf

Seniors in 116 high schools around the country were asked by the National Council of Teachers of English to list the 10 books they thought were the most significant they had read. There was nary a "Macbeth" or "Silas Marner" or "Tale of Two Cities" in the bunch.

Instead they chose these: "Lord of the Flies," "Catcher in the Rye," "1984," "To Kill a Mockingbird," "Crime and Punishment," "Gone With the Wind," "The Robe," "Black Like Me," "Cry the Beloved Country" and the Bible.

While all the schools in the study were considered to have outstanding English departments, of the dozen literary works most commonly taught in their courses, only two — "The Scarlet Letter" and "Return of the Native" — were mentioned by any of the students. Some of the schools, however, offer contemporary works on elective reading lists.

But at least half of the books chosen by the students have been banned by some schools and some teachers have been dismissed for teaching them, according to J. N. Hook, professor of English at the University of Illinois, in a preliminary report on the study.

What this study has to say about the quality of English education in American schools, or the fact that most Americans never touch a book once they leave school, we leave to the educators and sociologists to ponder. But it is not surprising that an adult population reared on often insipid 19th-century classics is sometimes bewildered—or worse, frightened—by the ideas and opinions of its 20th-century offspring.

How many parents have read any of the modern books listed by the students, or even bothered to ask their own children what books they have liked?

ATLANTA JOURNAL: Science Marches On. — University of Illinois scientists have put together genetic material of a virus in a test tube. Several scientists called the eve a major advance toward understanding the genetic processes that govern the growth and development of all living creatures.

They also said the achievement does not mean that scientists are about to create life from scratch in the laboratory. But to a layman, it certainly appears to be a step in that direction.

So try not to be too surprised if some day you pick up a newspaper and read that some scientist has tossed some ingredients into a test tube, shaken it up or heated it or something and turned to his colleagues to announce:

"That's life, boys."

Canadian Wanderlust

It seems quite logical that Americans should be the world's "travelingest" people. They aren't.

Based on percentage of population, more Canadians than Americans take foreign trips, report travel and tourism authorities. They also spend about $35 per capita on travel, which is more than four times the amount spent by U. S. citizens and higher than any other nationality.

Luring Young Voters, Politicians' Goal

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — Demonstrating their alertness to trends, politicians of both parties have been running around the country and telling everybody that half the U. S. population today is aged 25 years and under.

It happens not to be true. By careful calculation, the U. S. Census Bureau figures that in 1966 the median age was 27.8 years.

So the total take-over of the nation by the young may have to be postponed indefinitely, since the bureau now estimates that, even assuming the highest reasonable birth rates in the years ahead, the median age cannot drop close to 25 years until 1990.

At the moment, the birth rate is, in fact, off considerably from the pace of recent years. Population experts are not ready to say it will stay at existing levels. They think many families might change their minds and have more children later. But the downturn is interesting.

Should the birth rate continue roughly at present diminished levels, the median U. S. age will actually rise a little in the decades ahead. Any further slowing of the rate could lift the median to 30.4 years by 1990, near the highest point in history.

On the other hand, it would take a sizable speedup in the rate to produce any drop at all in the median. And, as observed, a very sharp pickup would be required to get the median down to 25 in the next 23 years.

Yet none of this means the two major parties are not well-advised to be building up their "youth divisions" with an eye to channeling an avalanche of youngsters their way as the latter come of voting age.

The postwar "baby boom" is reality, not conjecture. In 1968, a presidential year, the impact will be felt for the first time with great force.

The Census Bureau says that in 1967, as in 1965 and 1966, 2.8 million Americans turned or will turn 21. Next year, however, the number turning 21 will shoot up to 3.8 million.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Hugh Hogan of the Midwest Auto Supply Co., of West Main street, went to Fort Scott, Kans., to assist in the opening there of the first of a chain of stores in addition to one here. W. C. Hausam will be manager there.

Obviously not all of these will be able to vote. Some will reach their 21st birthday after the election in November, and all too many will be barred by some complexity—or an early cutoff date—in the tangle of voting registration requirements.

Nevertheless, the figures carry a strong message. These youngsters, and the nearly 9 million others who have come of age since the 1964 election, represent a new field to be conquered.

If either party can put its imprint on a high proportion of these first-time voters, it may make its future secure for years to come.

Moreover, the baby boom's impact on voting prospects will not end with 1968. In 1975, some 4 million youngsters will turn 21. In 1982, the total will have risen to 4.4 million. These will be young people born at the outset of the John F. Kennedy regime in 1961.

Presidential prospects in the late 1970s and the 1980s may find at each outing that they will be dealing with upwards of 16 million new voters.

From 1968 on, plainly, politicians and political parties that do not have highly developed techniques and programs for capturing and holding the many millions of new voters are not likely to thrive.

This does not mean, as we have seen, an early take-over by youth. The attitudes and needs of young Americans will have to be attended to as never before. But there will also be sharply rising numbers in the more mature age brackets, as the life span continues to stretch out and as the baby boom voters of 1968 move up the age scale into their 30s and 40s.

The population profile, then, is not that of a country growing precipitately younger. Politicians can forget their "25 and under" cliché. But there will be, at least for the next two decades, enormous numbers of new young voters as children already born in the boom years reach the magic age.

Critics Have Hard Time With Lodge

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The critics of the war in Vietnam took after Gen. William C. Westmoreland for criticizing the critics but they will have a hard time doing the same thing to Henry Cabot Lodge who said the same thing as Westmoreland.

In this memorable week the two top Americans closest to the war for years — Westmoreland, commander of the U. S. forces in Vietnam, and Lodge, retiring U. S. ambassador to Vietnam — summed up their thinking within a day of each other.

Thus this week the war was escalated on two fronts — with words as well as weapons — for the United States intensified it by bombing the MIG bases in North Vietnam and the argument over the war got hotter and more caustic.

Westmoreland, the U. S. military boss in Vietnam since 1964, this week in a New York speech went into detail to justify this country's presence in the war and in doing so answered many arguments of the critics.

In doing so he hit at them, saying the criticism here at home gives the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese an impression of American disunity and encourages them to keep fighting.

One senator and constant critic, George McGovern, D-S.D., resented the general's statement which, although brief, was a stinging attack on the critics.

Advise On Fitness

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Keeping in trim the year 'round shouldn't cost more than a pair of shoe soles, says Dr. Walter Bortz, a physical fitness expert.

"Just walk a mile every day," said the director of two major research programs on obesity and metabolic disorders at Lankenau Hospital during an interview.

He claimed Westmoreland had "obviously" been put up to saying it by President Johnson.

But Lodge, first named ambassador to Vietnam in 1963 by President John F. Kennedy, in a long interview with the New York Times also made a brief but pointed criticism of the critics.

"I think," he said, "the big thing outside Vietnam would be if, in the United States, we were to give the appearance of unity and if it were no longer possible for Hanoi to toss in some kind of bone and we all start snarling at each other over it. They have been very good at that, I think."

Lodge's interview was cool, well thought-out, and realistic about the whole picture in Vietnam. He doesn't think it is an easy road.

McGovern, in a Senate speech Tuesday, dismissed as a "rationalization" the domino theory for this country's part in the war, a theory enunciated by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1954 and followed ever since by Johnson and Kennedy.

This was it: If the Communists were allowed to grab off Vietnam, the rest of Southeast Asia would fall like dominoes: Burma, Thailand, Indonesia, Formosa, the Philippines, and even Australia.

But Lodge who gave his interview before McGovern talked, supported the domino theory after four years of watching the Communist effort to take over South Vietnam. He said "the well-advised domino theory applies here."

Both McGovern and Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., who has probably been more critical than anyone, have called the attempt by the North Vietnamese Communists to take over South Vietnam a civil war and said the United States butted into it.

McGovern said there was "no American interest, no issues of political freedom, no moral imperative that called for sending troops and bombers into Vietnam."

Lodge and Westmoreland both contradicted that viewpoint. Both called the struggle between the two Vietnams the result of aggression from the North.

The Lodge interview and the Westmoreland speech, taken together, are a detailed explanation for the U. S. involvement. They hit on some of the major points which the critics try to use to condemn the involvement.

There is an old bridge bro-mide that a peek is worth two finesse. You aren't supposed to peek but you can avoid some guesses about finessing.

East signaled come-on with the seven of clubs at trick one. West continued with the five.

South had lost two tricks and harrasing some unexpected squeeze situation in diamonds and clubs, there was a sure diamond loser also. This left South with the problem of picking up the queen of trumps if he wanted to make this contract, a result that South greatly desired.

South was a pretty good guesser but he found a way to substitute a sure thing for the guess. At least it would be sure unless one of his high cards was ruffed.

He started by running three rounds of spades and discarding a diamond from dummy. Then he cashed his ace and dummy's king of diamonds and led dummy's fourth club.

When East had to discard on that fourth club, South's worries were over. He led his low diamond and showed his hand.

It made no difference to him which opponent won the diamond trick, or what card was led back. He was down to the ace-jack-ten of trumps while dummy held the king-nine-seven and his opponent had to take the finesse for him.

Consumer Price Index Shows A New Turn Upward

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Just as evidence developed that more consumers were returning to the marketplace, statistics were released this week showing the Consumer Price Index has begun to climb a little bit faster.

This rising index is like a shadow. Every time the consumer moves it moves too. It now costs $11.50 for goods and services that less than 10 years ago cost $10.

Moreover, while the price tags on consumer goods rose in the past month, some wholesale prices dropped. This has more or less been going on now for close to a year.

This means, in the words of Arthur M. Ross, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor statistics, that lower wholesale prices were being "only partially passed along to the consumer."

The news sounds ominous. And it becomes complicated, too, when you hear the farmer say he isn't getting his share, the supermarket complain that its profits are only 2 per cent, and the distributor claim that he also is losing.

Although from time to time the government will discover companies conspiring to keep prices high, there is no over-all plot to defraud the consumer. Several factors must be kept in mind:

1. Even though purchasing power of factory workers is down some from a year ago, the long-term trend is for purchasing power to grow. The dollar is smaller but most people have more of them.

2. "Progress" is contributing to part of the rise. Housewives seem to be willing to pay for better products and packaging. They are demanding new foods. But, lack of progress is contributing also. Any layman on any shopping day sees evidence of waste and inefficiency.

3. The needs and demands of America are changing. The upward pressure on consumer prices is not so much from goods as from services: from medical care especially, and from rents, public transportation costs, loans, haircuts.

4. There may be an inevitable rise inherent in the price index. Not counting the years of the great depression, the index has risen in 38 years and dropped in only five years.

The trend to services, which rely on human skills to a great extent, would seem to assure a rise in the index in the next few years. Many of these skills cannot be automated to lower costs—a haircut for example.

that I think is more important—the fact that our existing industries have been so extremely cooperative. Without their help labor surveys could not have been substantiated, wage rates could not have been checked, industries' attitude toward the community could not have been verified. These people truly have been citizens of Sedalia and Pettis County. And so, congratulations are in order to the people of Sedalia who had faith that the community could put its best foot forward and that the community really had something to offer.

I am particularly proud of the fact that I was invited to head the Industrial Department for the City, and was a little bit apprehensive when I first came to Sedalia. Thus, I informed the Industrial Board and the City Council not to expect too much for the first three or four years.

Because of the changing attitude and the new ideas that have been instituted through this office, with the backing of Sedalia's City Council, I believe people in Sedalia now have a new outlook toward future economic growth and it's gratifying to observe.

I hope you will overlook some of my ramblings-on in this letter, however I believe the people of Sedalia need to give themselves a pat on the back and at the same time pledge to their community that we're ready to pull together to do it again.

Sedalia is on the grow, and as one of your officers in the Sedalia Democrat Company so aptly put it, "What Sedalia makes, makes Sedalia."

Accidents

A two-car accident at U. S. Highway 65 and County Route B at 6:50 p. m. Thursday resulted in an injury to a passenger in one of the cars.

Injured in the accident was Mildred May Wineburger, 55, Cole Camp. She received injuries to her left leg and right temple. She was taken to the Windsor Hospital in a Gillespie ambulance.

Mrs. Wineburger was a passenger in a 1962 Chevrolet, driven north on 65 by Lawrence Junior Wineburger, 32, Cole Camp, when it was in collision with a 1965 Chevrolet stationwagon, driven north on 65 by Lyle B. Cummings, 45, Clinton.

The accident occurred when the stationwagon had stopped for a car which was in front of him attempting to make a left turn. The Wineburger car was unable to stop and ran into the rear end of the Cummings car. The Wineburger car was towed away by Parks wrecker.

Trooper S. A. Wollard investigated the accident. Wollard issued Wineburger a Highway Patrol summons for careless and imprudent driving.

A minor one car accident occurred at 538 West Saline at 3:13 p. m. Thursday.

A 1958 Chevrolet, driven west on Saline by Gloria Weir, 20, 1218 South Osage, ran into the front yard of 538 West Saline in order to avoid hitting a dog which ran into the street.

No damage occurred to the car, but minor damage was done to a fence, some pottery and a flower bed.

can be handled on a single-year basis. Defeated by the House Thursday was another amendment that would have permitted the presiding officers of the two houses to call a special session — without the consent of the governor — if two-thirds of the membership agreed.

If the annual session proposal passes both houses it will be subject to approval of the voters at the 1968 general election or at a special election before then.

A bill to create a commission in the House until majority floor leader Richard Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, raised a point of order on a proposed amendment.

Rep. Vernon Betz, R-Trenton, offered an amendment that would set the salary of the commission's director at $17,500 a year.

Rabbitt objected to the procedure, then realized he did not have a majority behind him since many Democrats had already left for home and the Republican side was nearly full.

He immediately moved for weekend adjournment with the bill still pending.

The measure is a pet project of Will Davis, the governor's press secretary. He has said he wanted it so more money promoting Missouri as a recreation spot would be spent in Missouri's newspapers rather than in national magazines.

Davis was a close observer of the House action Thursday. His plan would be to take the tourism promotional work out of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development and give it to a new agency.
